Beer and Submarines. Some New Automobiles. Socialism. What Is It? Jobs For 3,000,000?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, May 8.

WARM WEATHER here, about 85 degrees, and plenty of sunshine. May, when visitors leave, is the best month in Florida, as October and November are the best months at Bar Harbor, although nobody ever stays for them.

All summer long is the best season in California, and Californians, co-operating in advertising and with propaganda, are making the fact known.

TODAY IS Florida's beer day, first legal selling here. It was interesting to see very young women approach the soda water stand at Jacksonville railroad station, asking:

"Have you beer?"

This will horrify good temperance people, but it is better than having the same young women in a speakeasy say:

"Give me a cocktail."

FLORIDA BUSINESSMEN are interested in the announcement that in New York City the federal, state and city tax on beer amounted to $3,000,000 in the first month. If New York City alone can collect at the rate of $36,000,000 a year, Florida, with its tropical climate should do well.

IN THE harbor of Miami today are seven of Uncle Sam's submarines, with rescue equipment and two tenders.

They came from the Pacific through the Panama Canal, and only 500 officers and men are required to man these submarines and their tenders, about one-tenth the number required on a first-class big battleship. And any one of the submarines could sink any battleship, or two or three of them.

WHY NOT build more submarines and more swift planes to tell submarines where to go and stop building the foolish battleships or spending money on those we have?

The world's greatest fleets of fighting planes, pursuit planes, heavy bombing planes, submarines and swift cruisers to destroy enemy commerce, such is the equipment that Uncle Sam needs. And he ought not to ask England, France, Turkey or Timbuctoo: Please, may I?"

THE AUTOMOBILE industry supplies much news. Walter Chrysler announces two new cars, Nash will present three "straight eights" and a "big six."

Mr. Erskine has entered five Studebakers in the great Indianapolis race. Mr. Knudsen, having introduced his lower priced Chevrolet, is at work on "a surprise."

A new car, with a clear floor board, no hand levers for gear shifting, is presented by Mr. Scott, of the Reo Company. The car was demonstrated for the writer in New York, by Mr. Stowe, vice president and general manager of Reo.

Gear shifting by hand will disappear, according to Mr. Stowe, as the old "cranking" by hand has disappeared.

The new idea includes gears that automatically adjust themselves to hills, slow down to less than a half mile an hour in high, and make it unnecessary for the driver ever to take his eyes off the road. There is still, perhaps, room for improvement, in highly perfected automobile engineering.

AND BY the way, before you are three months older, Henry Ford, the father of "automobiles for everybody," will show you something that the world will talk about. This writer has seen it, but details are still a secret.

All automobile news, including increased production, is interesting and encouraging. But the real interest begins when you get a new car and start driving it. Do that, if you can. It is a wonderful "depression lifter."

A UNIVERSAL SERVICE dispatch from Rome reports:

"Premier Mussolini is nearing socialism."

He tolerates private business only under favorable circumstances. His government seizes more and more on "big" business, and dominates Italy's major industries.

This country, without knowing it, may be headed in the same direction.

BUT, "COMMON SENSE" might be a better name than socialism, for such government action.

Many things that would have been called "Socialism" a few years ago, are merely "capitalistic improvements" today. Parks for the common people, finer than any king could afford, ocean ships for common travelers that no ruler or millionaire could provide for himself, public schools and universities maintained with public moneys, museums for the free use of the public, health departments that concentrate especially on neighborhoods and constantly reduce the death rate, all these would once have been called "Socialism."

MR. ROOSEVELT, co-operating with private employers, hopes to put three million men to work. Employers ask for "some relaxation of anti-trust laws," that by agreement among themselves, now forbidden, they may fight the depression.

If 3,000,000 could be put at their old jobs or in new jobs, that would mean returning prosperity. If the plan is for the 3,000,000 to divide jobs with others, so that all will have barely enough to live on, and

Launch Drive Against Vice Reign at Meet Today

Gangland's challenge to the North Side vice crusade—the bomb found Saturday at the Second United Presbyterian Church—was expected to be answered today at a meeting of Protestant ministers of the North Side in the North Side Y. M. C. A.

Aroused by threats of intimidation, the ministers were expected to launch an intensified drive against vice, their campaign aimed particularly at the organized forces of crime.

North Side congregations yesterday hummed with an undercurrent of excitement over the planting of the bomb at the Second United Presbyterian Church. Ministers refrained from discussing the outrage, except in the single instance of the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Laing, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, who assured his congregation that there was "no cause for alarm."

Two uniformed patrolmen of the North Side Station hovered protectingly in the vicinity of Sandusky street and Stockton avenue during church services, but there was no interference.

Despite the close observance of a special detail of 10 plainclothesmen assigned to the district by Senior Capt. Anthony Block, there were no arrests over the week-end. Neither were there any arrests by city detectives of the bomb and arson squad investigat-

ARRANGE TRUCE IN P. S. C. FEUD

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—Clyde L. King and C. Jay Goodnough, claimants to the chairmanship of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, have agreed not to attempt to sit as head of that body until the courts decide the issue.

Attorney General William A. Schnader announced today that in view of King's refusal to relinquish his position as a member and chairman of the commission, it will be necessary for the state to institute quo warranto proceedings against him in the Supreme Court. He added:

"To avoid any interference with the orderly conduct of the work of the commission pending the determination of this case, the principals have agreed to absent themselves from meetings of the commission, thus permitting Commissioner S. Ray Shelby to serve as acting chairman for the time being."

Dr. King, designated chairman by Gov. Pinchot between sessions of the Legislature, had a disagreement with the Governor and he was not renamed. But King refused to quit.

F. R. Tells Industry Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—A government "partnership" with industry to improve wages, shorten working hours and control surplus production will be President Roosevelt's next move in attacking economic adversity.

He revealed this last night in giving the nation a full expression of his policies, past and future, for domestic and international recovery from the depression.

Similar to the measures already proposed for government co-operation with agriculture and transportation, the President would put the force of government behind trade agreements under a relaxation of the anti-trust laws.

INFLATION POWERS

Seated at a desk in the White House, Mr. Roosevelt also gave notice that he would use the powers about to be given him by Congress to provide inflation "when, as, and if it may be necessary to accomplish the purpose." He said:

"The administration has the definite objective of raising commodity prices to such an extent that those who have borrowed money will, in the average, be able to repay that money in the same kind of dollar which they borrowed. We do not seek to let them get such a cheap dollar that they will be able to pay back a great deal less than they borrowed.

"In other words, we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction. That is why

PINCHOT'S WIFE IN STRIKE FILM

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, Pennsylvania's first lady, today took the leading role in a newsreel filmed at the plant of the D. and D. Shirt Company at Northampton, where for a third time she marched with child strikers protesting sweatshop conditions.

From data collected on two previous visits to the strike area, Mrs. Pinchot denounced sweatshops and their attendant evils and sound apparatus caught up her words for reproduction in all parts of the country.

Mrs. Pinchot agreed to participate in a second rally at the plant of Morris Freezer, at Allentown, where 60 girls are on strike, if the first newsreel is found unsatisfactory. Mrs. Pinchot was given an ovation by the more than 300 girls on strike at the D. and D. plant.

Welles Tells Cubans He Won't 'Meddle'

HAVANA, May 8.—(AP.)—Sumner Welles, new United States Ambassador, has promised Cubans that he will not meddle in their domestic affairs.

There were scattered "vivas" as the Ambassador arrived yesterday and was escorted from the dock to the Hotel National by police. Elaborate precautions were taken to prevent disorder.

VOTERS OPEN ANTI-COYNE CAMPAIGN

Citizens Committee, Women's League Lash Herron

Lashing out at the leadership of Mayor John S. Herron and Senator James J. Coyne, the Citizens' Committee and the League of Women Voters today announced the formation of the Citizens' League of Allegheny County to rally the independent political forces for battle at the polls next fall.

A joint statement by leaders of the Citizens' Committee and the League of Women voters calls on those opposed to "present gang rule" to help the new organization.

HERRON ASSAILED

In the statement, Herron is scored as the man who, as president of Council and head of the Kline majority, fought efforts to disclose corruption in city affairs.

Senator Coyne, the statement declares, "is well known for his utter disregard of the wishes of the people as evidenced by his recent actions in Harrisburg."

William P. Withrow, a member of the Citizens Committee, has been mentioned on numerous occasions as independent candidate for Mayor, although he has never announced his candidacy.

No names of possible candidates are mentioned in the statement, but it is indicated that a complete slate will be selected for the municipal election in the fall.

The statement, issued by Joseph Dilworth, chairman of the Citizens Committee, and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the League of Women Voters, follows:

"The Citizens' Committee, together with the League of Women Voters, supported by the newspapers and a large group of public spirited citizens, initiated a movement about two years ago to rid the city of a Mayor, who, backed by a majority in Council, headed probably the most corrupt political

Accused of Hitting Newsboy, Man Fined

Because Patrolman Howard Lavelle testified in South Side Police Court yesterday that William Pengara, 32, of 283 Alice street, Knoxville, "took a punch" at Kenneth Hutter, 12, of 118 Amanda street, a newsboy at Bausman and Brownsville road, Knoxville, Pengara was fined $5 by Magistrate J. J. Sweeney. Pengara hit Hutter, it was testified, when the latter asked him if he wanted to buy a paper.

Soost's Son Faces Charge After Crash

A reckless driving charge today faced William J. Soost, Jr., son of the Councilman and former Traffic Court Magistrate, following a collision at Fifth and Sixth avenues early yesterday.

Police said Soost's car collided with another driven by Walter Lloyd, of Moon Run. Robert Padglek, 24, and John Gaspari, passengers in Lloyd's car, were injured. Both drivers posted forfeits for Traffic Court hearings.

Seizure Enables Mayor To See 'Gum' Machine

One of the racket's new slot machines—the kind Mayor John S. Herro indicated he would like to see—has been confiscated by Albert Jones, downtown police lieutenant.

As he seized the machine, Lieut. Jones arrested Louis Luchecci, said to be the restaurant proprietor. Because Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court yesterday could not determine whether the machine was a gambling device, he held the case over until today.

The fact that the device paid out chewing gum with each "play" indicated it was not a gambling machine, Magistrate Jones said.

However, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, in a statement last week, said the new type machine as described to him was a gambling device, and declared the chewing gum did not excuse it.

Lieut. Jones testified in Morals Court yesterday that certain combinations of characters in the machines were paid for in cash to the player by the proprietor.

GANDHI FREED IN 'DEATH' FAST

POONA, India, May 8.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi was released from prison tonight a few hours after he had started an "unconditional" fast, planned the last three weeks, which he declared he would not terminate even if every temple was opened to India's "Untouchables" and the stain of untouchability wholly removed.

Doctors said the fast would mean his death.

He issued a statement just after beginning the fast, which asserted:

"Every day brings me fresh justification for the ordeal which God and truth have sent me.

AHMEDABAD, India, May 8.—(AP.)—Nila Cram Cook, young American disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, began today a new life in accordance with the teachings of the "holy one."

She admitted yesterday that the Mahatma's accusations of worldliness against her were "all true" and asserted her determination to start over again.

County Gets Right To Nadine Property

The county today was a step nearer final solution of the Nadine bungle which has tied up completion of the Allegheny River boulevard for several years.

The grany jury approved and Judge Samuel H. Gardner confirmed the petition of the County to condemn a strip of property owned by the Pennsylvania Water Company and to occupy part of a Pennsylvania Railroad right-of-way on which it can build the road.

Helped to Hospital By Girl, Nat Denies Suicide Attempt

Nat Nazarro, Jr., 27, band leader and vaudeville entertainer, was being held by police in Allegheny General Hospital today in connection with what police say was an attempt to end his life.

Nazarro was arrested by Police Lieut. Albert Florig at the hospital where he went for treatment in company with Margie Nelson, well known blues singer, according to the police report.

Lieut. Florig said he was informed by the proprietors of a Sixth avenue restaurant that Nazarro had swallowed five poison tablets while he was at dinner with Bernie Armstrong, organist, and the latter's wife, Dorothy Bushey.

Nazarro, who lives at the Seventh Avenue Hotel, told Lieut. Florig he had taken the tablets by mistake, Florig said. Police said they confiscated the bottle, in which several of the poison tablets remained.

Both Armstrong and Nazarro were scheduled to appear in a benefit show at the Stanley Theater last night. Nazarro did not.

Miss Nelson said:

"I saw him on the sidewalk. He appeared very sick. He told me he had had a bad headache and had taken medicine for it. He must have gotten the wrong thing by mistake. I know of no reason why he would want to take poison."

GIRL AND YOUTH BOUND, ROBBED

Cowed by a revolver shot, a girl and her escort were bound and robbed in lonely Baldwin road early today. Police said a description of the robber tallied with that of the man who held up a young couple in Frick Woods last week.

Irene Dowling, 19, of 2019 Dowling street, Carrick, and Elmer Bamford, 23, of 3013 Alberta street, Homestead Park, said the bandit stepped on the running board of Bamford's car in Baldwin Township this morning, climbed into the rear seat and pressed a revolver against the young man's back.

Ordered to drive to an abandoned coal mine along the road, Bamford said:

"You don't need to hold that gun. I'll go as far as the gas holds out."

Without replying, the man fired, the bullet knocking a cigaret from Bamford's mouth, according to Miss Dowling. Then he said:

"You think I'm an old softie, do you?"

Arriving at the coal mine, Miss Dowling and her companion were bound and robbed of jewelry and several pay checks Bamford had in his pockets. The robber fled with the automobile, which was found later near Hays.

OPEN BATTLE NEAR U. S. CAMP

Invaders Attempt to 'Annihilate' All Chinese in Path

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, May 8.—Japanese and Manchukuo troops swept toward the Peiping-Tientsin area today, launching their long-awaited southward drive by reoccupying the Lwan River triangle south of the Great Wall.

Lieut. Joseph G. Felber, commanding the American Fifteenth Infantry Regiment stationed at Chinwangtao, advised the United State Legation here that the Japanese had "raised the curtain on their offensive" with sharp skirmishes near the American camp.

DRIVE ON TRIANGLE

The Lwan River triangle was evacuated by the Japanese several weeks ago when troops were needed along the northern frontier of Manchukuo, where trouble with Soviet Russia was threatening.

The Japanese made this sector their first objective in the new drive, which has the ostensible aim of "annihilating" all Chinese troops still offering resistence south of the Great Wall.

Sharp skirmishes were reported at Nantassu, near the American camp, as well as at Peitaiho, a coastal town south of Shanhaikwan and Chinwangtao.

Meanwhile, another Japanese and Manchukuo column was moving westward over the Mandarin highway, capturing Yungping on the road to Peiping.

GENERAL SHOT

Meanwhile, Peiping had a fresh sensation in the shooting of a Monarchist general, Former Gov. Chang Ching-Yao of Hunan Province. The shooting reportedly broke up plans for an early restoration of Henry Pu Yi, former Boy Emperor and now regent of Manchukuo, to the Dragon Throne.

Gen. Chang was rushed to the German hospital, where he was expected to die.

He was shot in the Wagons-Lits Hotel, in Peiping's diplomatic quarter, by an unknown assailant, who escaped unmolested.

Wards' Story of Hunger Blasted by 'Mother'

Mrs. Bridget Cochran today was stirring an appetizing dish on the stove at her home, 13 Augustine street, when she was told one of her Juvenile Court wards had testified he had to steal because he didn't get enough to eat.

She exclaimed:

"Glory be! If my boys could get better anywhere, I'd like to know where."

Mrs. Cochran has five boys placed in her home by Juvenile Court. Two of them had disappeared.

The two showed up in Morals Court today charged, along with two other boys, with breaking into the grocery of Forrest Young, 4938 Murray avenue, and carrying away three baskets of spoiled foodstuffs.

They were turned back to Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Cochran, white-haired, kindly-faced widow, said:

"My boys get eggs, cereal and fruit for breakfast. Last night for dinner they had chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy and strawberries. I don't have to depend on what the court gives me. And I've been keeping boys for 18 years."

BRITAIN LAUNCHES NEW DRIVE FOR DEBT MORATORIUM

LONDON SEEKS TARIFF TRUCE BARGAIN

Official Admits Plan To Barter for Agreement

BULLETIN.

PARIS, May 8.—(AP.)—The French cabinet today unanimously took a flat stand against the payment to the United States of the defaulted interest due last December 15 without a guarantee of a moratorium on the June 15 debt payment.

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, May 8.—While decrying the idea of a "debt swap," British officialdom launched a new campaign today to obtain a moratorium on the foreign debt payment due the United States on June 15.

A high British official told International News Service that neither Britain nor the United States would be satisfied by trading British agreement to the proposed tariff truce for a moratorium on the payment.

He intimated, however, that Britain was attempting to obtain an Anglo-American agreement under which the tariff truce and debt moratorium would mark the opening of the world economic conference here on June 12.

MACDONALD QUIZZED

Prime Minister MacDonald returned non-committal answers when questioned regarding the tariff truce in the House of Commons this afternoon. He said he had nothing to add to his statement of last week, when he stated Britain would impose reservations to the original American plan.

According to this plan, the tariff truce would be announced publicly at the outset of the conference, while the debt moratorium would be decided upon in private consultations probably during the visit of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The British hope Hull and President Roosevelt will sanction the plan with the aim of obtaining Congressional approval to indefinite suspension of the payment rather than forcing Britain into a default.

'SWAP' UNLIKELY

The British spokesman said:

"Swapping the tariff for a debt moratorium is most unlikely. Such an exchange would not satisfy the political demands of either side.

"But it is most probable both questions will continue to run in parallel channels without merging."

Meanwhile, widespread dasappointment was expressed in British official circles today over President Roosevelt's failure to mention foreign debts in his radio speech last night.

It was the first meeting between King and Premier since MacDonald returned from Washington. The Prime Minister reported in detail concerning his conversations with President Roosevelt.

PARTY OPPOSES F. R.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—The fate of eight great economic relief measures hung in the balance today while Democratic leaders sought to persuade President Roosevelt against asking Congress for power to slash the tariff and postpone foreign debt payments.

The President, backed by Secretary of State Hull, was reported insisting on adoption of a resolution by Congress, giving him power to negotiate reciprocal tariff-slashing treaties and to grant another moratorium on the June 15 debt payments. The President was pictured as regarding these concessions necessary to insure the success of the London economic conference next month.

Delegations of House and Senate Democrats planned to call on the President within the next few days to urge him against this course. They were prepared to tell him bluntly his whole emergency relief program would be jeopardized by any act plunging Congress into a bitter struggle over foreign debts and the tariff.

16 TO 1 SILVER PUSHED

Meanwhile, the Wheeler resolution, urging American delegates to the world economic conference to work for an agreement to remonetize silver at 16 to 1 with gold was approved today by the Senate.

Belgium today notified the United States of its unconditional acceptance of the American proposal for an international tariff truce.

BEER LICENSING SOON TO BEGIN

Application blanks for wholesale and retail beer permits probably will be ready at the County Treasurer's office Thursday, it was announced today by Deputy County Treasurer A. E. Anke.

Thousands of inquiries about permits have been received during the past week, according to Anke. The permits will not be issued before June 1, although applications may be filed before that date.

The new beer law requires both wholesalers and retailers to take out permits. Retail permits will cost from $75 to $300 a year, depending on the population of the township, borough or city.

SHELTON AUTO THIEF HUNTED

Hospitals and doctors' offices of the East End district were being watched today in a search for a youth believed wounded when fired upon as he fled from Patrolman James Thompson, en route to the East Liberty Police Station.

The boy was one of two police believed implicated in the theft of the automobile of the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, North Side vice crusader, from in front of his home, 149 Marshall avenue, last night.

An hour after the theft had been broadcast by radio, Patrolman Thompson and Patrolman Joseph O'Donnell in a radio car sighted Dr. Shelton's atomobile in Broad street, near Beatty street. Hailed by the officers, the pair left the stolen car and ran. Thompson caught one after a short chase and was taking him to the police station when he made a dash for freedom. The officer fired two shots and said he believed he wounded the youth.

ing the placing of the bomb at the church Saturday. A report on the nature of the explosive found in the improvised "ether can' bomb was expected today. It was said Saturday the contents of the can were believed to be of some nitro compound.

Investigation of city vice conditions have been left entirely to the city authorities, District Attorney Andrew T. Park revealed today. Park said all complaints except those of the Juvenile and Criminal Court received by his office are being turned over to Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide.

Prior to McQuaide's appointment and during the latter part of the Kline regime, county detectives were employed in running down complaints of vice conditions in the city.

Capt. John Flavin assigned 10 plainclothes officers to patrol the lower North Side district, described as "festering with vice" last night and early today and to guard churches against repetition of Saturday's attempt to bomb the Second United Presbyterian Church.

The net result of the vice squad's activity was the arrest of Peter Mariades, 40, of 1804 East Ohio street, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and Hilda Davis, 41, of the same address on a charge of violating a city ordinance. A small quantity of gin was reported confiscated.

not enough to live on decently, that will not be so cheerful.

IT WILL not be denied that when it comes to taxation, this country really understands its business. For instance, New York has a sales tax, and you are told that blood transfusions will be taxed like other "products."

A man giving blood to save a dying fellow creature is sometimes paid. The proposition is a tax on the blood transferred from one to the other, which would seem to be the last word in taxation, except a tax on coffins.

Those that supply blood might fight the tax on the ground that foods are not taxed, and blood transfusion means food for the weak heart that blood supplies.

F. R. OUTLINES PLANS TO AID INDUSTRY

Federal Partnership Proposal Revealed In Radio Talk

powers are being given to the administration to provide, if necessary, for an enlargement of credit, in order to correct the existing wrong."

There is every indication Mr. Roosevelt will employ promptly the provision in the inflation bill providing for government purchase of outstanding government bonds as a means of making millions, now invested by banks in these obligations, free for industry's use.

30-HOUR WEEK

His declaration that "well considered and conservative measures will be proposed" for industrial supervision was regarded as meaning that something new in the way of legislaton would be advanced in the place of the 30-hour work week bill now pending in the House.

An unofficial committee, headed by Senator Wagner, (Dem.), of New York, has virtually completed the drafting of a plan for self-regulation by industry through a relaxation of the anti-trust laws and is expected to put it before the President this week.

Industry has been described by J. H. Rand, Jr., prominent manufacturer and a member of the Wagner committee, as considering a proposal to put 3,000,000 men back to work on a specified date as a part of the program.

Mr. Roosevelt, speaking of the authority about to be given him over agriculture to improve commodity prices and prevent overproduction, said "the extent of its use will depend entirely upon what the future has in store."

30-HOUR WEEK BILL REVISED

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Adopting President Roosevelt's plan for government supervision of industry and suspension of the anti-trust laws, Chairman Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, of the House Labor Committee, today announced a revised 30-hour week bill will be submitted to the House.

The measure will embrace a compromise between the views of industry, the administration and labor, except on one proposal. The House group, Connery said, will demand foreign imports be brought within the terms of the bill.

The new bill will be drafted by a labor subcommittee tomorrow. It will include:

1—Limitation of 30-hour week and six-hour day for industry, with exception that a 40-hour week and six-hour shift can be employed one week out of six.

2—Suspension of Clayton and Sherman anti-trust acts to permit industry, through trade associations and labor to stabilize industry.

Canadian Minister Goes Under Knife

OTTAWA, May 8.—(AP.)—Maj. W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, was taken to an Ottawa hospital today for an immediate operation for appendicitis. He has been under medical care for some time.

Mrs. Herridge is in Ottawa, a guest of her brother, Prime Minister Bennett.

HITLER ROUSES TROOPS; AIDE KILLS SELF

Nationalist Leader's Suicide One of 6 Among Notables

KIEL, Germany, May 8.—(AP.)—A rousing speech by Chancellor Hitler before 30,000 Nazi storm troopers, and the suicide of Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, Nationalist floor leader of the Reichstag, drew attention today to this city.

Only a few hours before Hitler appeared before the Nazis last night, Dr. Oberfohren took his life in another part of this northern city.

Hitler charged "1918 traitors" lost the World War by strikes and promised the last vestiges of that system of labor would be uprooted. He estimated 8,000,000 persons are now unemployed in Germany.

BERLIN, May 8.—(AP.)—Erst Katz and Frau Katz, son-in-law and daughter of former Chancellor Scheidemann, Socialist leader, were among a number of prominent persons who committed suicide in Germany over the weekend.

Former Mayor Vomtruch, of Leer, Dr. Goesser, official of a Stuttgart milk company, and Nelly Neppachs, former German tennis champion, were others. The latter suicide was attributed to ill health.

The list of forbidden books was increased today to add to the flames of the students' fires throughout Germany on Wednesday. Additional books banned include works by the Americans, Jack London, Helen Keller and Morris Hillquit, New York Socialist.

U.S. 'GAG' VOTED, THEN DELAYED

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—The Senate today passed and then reconsidered the modified bill to prevent publication of secret code documents obtained fraudulently by government employes.

The favorable vote had been taken without debate, but Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, had his way a moment later when he sought reconsideration.

The Californian said he had no desire to delay the bill, but wanted to offer an amendment. Its nature was not disclosed.

Simplified to overcome protests that, as passed by the House, it might interfere with freedom of the press, the measure must go back to that body for acceptance of changes, once it is passed.

HARRIMAN TRIAL POSTPONED

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Trial of Joseph W. Harriman, former president and chairman of the board of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, on charges of causing 13 false entries to be made on books of the bank was postponed today until May 22.

It is understood the illness of United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, which caused the case of the government against Charles E. Mitchell, former National City Bank Chairman, indicted for income tax law violation, to be put over until Thursday, also caused the Harriman trial postponement.

INDEPENDENTS LASH COYNE

machine Pittsburgh has ever seen.

"Something has been accomplished, but the job is far from being finished, as while Kline is out, he has been succeeded by the man who as president of Council and head of the Kline majority, bitterly fought every effort made to disclose corruption and graft in city affairs.

"Now as Mayor, with the backing of Senator James J. Coyne, and the sores of the past three years ineffectually covered with a very light dressing recently applied, he expects us to forget the past and believe that he and his majority have suddenly acquired independence and a change of heart.

"Coyne's power and influence in political circles, past and present are well known, as is his utter disregard of the wishes of the people as evidenced by his recent actions in Harrisburg. If this present leadership is to be ousted and we are to have honest government, lower taxes, and rid ourselves of the rackets which are an ever-increasing menace, we can only accomplish this by united opposition and thorough organization to the end that honest, capable candidates will be nominated and elected not only this year, but next year and the year after.

"Accordingly, the Citizens Committee and the League of Women Voters have united in sponsoring the formation of the Citizens League of Allegheny County and urge every individual and organization who are opposed to the present gang rule and are in favor of an honest and efficient administration of public affairs, to indorse and join the Citizens League and take an active part in its work."

An executive committee of the new league is to be announced soon. The organization marks the first direct step into active politics taken by the Citizens Committee and the League of Women Voters.

ELECTRIC TAX CHANGE VOTED

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—A 2 per cent tax on the gross proceeds of companies producing electrical power for domestic or commercial uses, was voted today by the Senate Finance Committee as a part of the administration's budget-balancing tax bill.

A new levy was imposed on industrial consumers of electrical power, through a sales tax of 1 per cent on their use of power.

These taxes would be substituted for the 3 per cent tax on consumers of electrical power, imposed during the current year. Industries were exempted from the current tax.

SLAYER FORCES FARM GIRL TO KILL HIM

Daughter of Victim Shoots Man She Had Spurned

ELGIN, Ill., May 8.—(AP.)—The dramatic details of how a 17-year-old girl was forced to act as the executioner of her father's slayer, after her own life had been spared by the failure of a shotgun to respond to the trigger, were revealed today.

The girl, for whose act the state's attorney said he would ask a coroner's jury today to return a verdict of justifiable homicide, is Loretta Schmitz. Her victim was Oliver Day, 48, slayer of her father, John Schmitz, 56, a farmer. The authorities said they believed Day had become moody over his failure to win the girl's affections.

The brief reign of terror gripped the Schmitz home Sunday when Day, believed crazed by liquor, dashed into the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Schmitz, for whom he had worked for 15 years as a farm hand. Armed with a shotgun he threatened them all.

WIFE BATTLES KILLER

As Schmitz, township clerk and school board president, leaped from bed and struggled with the man, Day shot him fatally. A moment before Schmitz had been shot in the leg as the gun was discharged as Mrs. Schmitz came to her husband's rescue and scuffled with Day.

Day ran to Loretta's room as Mrs. Schmitz escaped and fled to the nearby home of a married daughter

The girl said she was forced to get on the bed as Day pointed the gun at her. She waited with her face covered for the shot. She heard the trigger click—but nothing happened.

TELLS HER TO SHOOT

At that the farm hand thrust the weapon into her hands, ordering her to kill him, then herself. He commanded:

"You kill me or I'll kill you!"

She pulled the trigger. Again the gun didn't work. Then Day told her to release the safety catch. She did, and fired. The man fell mortally wounded.

A few hours before the double tragedy Loretta and a boy friend had encountered Day when they returned from an automobile ride and hurried to the schoolhouse to tell her father Day had ordered her off the premises at the point of a gun.

Later the family returned home and when Day appeared and refused to retire, Mrs. Schmitz handed him a blanket and told him to sleep on the porch.

DARROW TO AID IOWA FARMERS

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association, was back in Iowa today with the conditional promise of Clarence Darrow to help in the defense of farmers held by the military for an attack on Judge C. C. Bradley at Le Mars, Ia.

The 76-year-old Chicago attorney, whose announced retirement has been marked by numerous returns to the bar in defense of persons who have made special appeals to him, however, made his promise dependent upon his state of health.

MitchellReportedBroke And Owing $2,000,000

By DOROTHY ROE,
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Charles E. Mitchell, one-time a Croesus of the bonanza days in Wall street, who goes on trial Thursday for alleged income tax evasion, is reported to be not only virtually "broke," but $2,000,000 in debt.

Before his recent resignation as president of the National City Bank, the name of Mitchell was linked all over the world with unlimited wealth.

President of the second largest bank in the world, uncrowned king of Wall street in the pre-crash days when fortunes were made on a click of the ticker, Mitchell was the acknowledged fair-haired boy of the money markets.

The new picture of Mitchell as a dethroned king, stripped of his ermine and his gold, even his honor questioned, has caused a sensation in the street where once he reigned.

Charged with non-payment of nearly $500,000 income taxes for 1929 and 1930, Mitchell will be defended by a brilliant array of legal talent, reading like a who's who of the bar.

Pan-American Trade Pact Plan Pushed

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Roosevelt administration was urged today by Representative Bloom (Dem), of New York, to negotiate immediately Pan-American tariff reciprocity agreements to block European efforts to capture South and Central American markets from the United States.

As Pan-American ambassadors and ministers here praised the editorial yesterday by the Hearst newspapers, urging such an agreement, leading members of the House and Senate foreign affairs committees lined up strongly behind the program.

Bloom, second ranking Democratic member of the House committee, said:

"Months ago the reciprocity agreement was proposed by Mr. Hearst. Nothing was done.

"Meanwhile, Great Britain has moved to act where the United States has slept. It has taken one market from us—Argentina—and will take others as fast as treaties can be negotiated.

"If Great Britain thought well enough of the idea to send her salesman de luxe, the Prince of Wales, to South America to arrange these tariff concessions and to snatch off the South American markets, the United States should think well enough of it to defend herself.

"It is silly to wait until the world economic conference. It will be months before anything is accomplished there, if at all. We should act and act immediately. It's not diplomacy, it's good business."

BROTHERS DENY GUILT WHEN ARRAIGNED

Chauffeur Repudiates Admission of Aides Through Police

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., May 8.—"Not guilty" was the plea of Kenneth Buck, kidnaper of Peggy McMath, 10-year-old heiress, and his brother, Cyril Buck, who acted as his contact man in the ransom negotiations with the McMath family when they were arraigned in the Second District Court of Provincetown this afternoon.

Overshadowing the court proceedings, however, was the startling statement of Kenneth Buck to newspapermen while waiting for arraignment that "others" were involved in the kidnaping besides him and his brother. In an evasive way he indicated there were two others mixed up in the plot.

ADMISSION DENIED

After Kenneth Buck had made this statement to the press, Detective Lieut. Ernest Bradford talked with the prisoner. Then Bradford told the reporters Kenneth had denied he said two others were involved. However, Bradford declared the authorities would run down "every scintilla of evidence." He indicated the case was not closed.

Both Kenneth and Cyril Buck were held in $100,000 bail each by Judge Robert A. Welch, who granted them a two-weeks continuance of the hearing until May 22.

Kenneth first said there was two others involved—then, under further questioning, became evasive and secretive and would not say specifically whether there was only one more in the kidnap plot or two more.

REFUSES TO TELL

He was asked by the reporters whether the others involved were local men or from some other place—say New York City or Boston.

The prisoner thought a long time, then blurted out:

"I won't say any more."

The interview came to a close when one of the reporters mentioned Kenneth's wife and his son, Kenneth, Jr., 6 years old. Breaking into tears, he said:

"I have a fine wife."

The reporters then withdrew as the prisoner wept quietly.

Shortly after the interview Detective-Lieut. Ernest Bradford, emerging from the conference in another room, went into a huddle with the Buck brothers. After a few minutes Bradford said:

"They both deny they said there were two others involved in the kidnaping."

A chorus of "noes" went up from the reporters. Bradford hastened to say:

"I'm not saying he didn't tell you gentlemen that, but when I told Kenneth Buck that I heard he had informed newspapermen two others were involved he denied he said it."

Kenneth faces a long term in prison. The crime of kidnaping carries a maximum penalty in this state of 25 years. The extortion charge probably will add an additional penalty of 15 years, or 40 years in all.

'Chamber of Horrors' Little Peggy's Prison

HARWICH, Mass., May 8.—(INS.)—"A chamber of horrors."

Such was the description today by the authorities of the cellar hideout in the vacant house where Kenneth Buck, the kidnaper, kept "Peggy" McMath bound, gagged and blindfolded for two days and two nights.

The police were shocked when they examined the damp, pitch-black confines of the basement hideaway which is located across the street from Buck's home in Harwich.

For two days and two nights the child was kept in the basement dungeon which is less than three fet high, black as night, stuffy and damp. Worst of all she was lying not far from an eight-foot dry cistern.

Officials were shocked to think what might have happened had "Peggy" rolled over to the cistern. She might have dropped to her death.

While "Peggy" laid there in the darkness she could hear children playing outside because the vacant house, with its cement sidewalk was a favorite spot of the children in the neighborhood to roller skate and play without anybody complaining.

Asked why she did not call out to the other children, hardly six feet away, Peggy replied, pointing to Buck:

"The man told me he was my friend and that he was protecting me from some bad men who were trying to kidnap me and he said that I must not make any noise, so I promised him I wouldn't.

"I couldn't go back on my word, could I?"

$3,000,000 FIRE SWEEPS CITY

ELLSWORTH, Me., May 8.—(AP.)—Ellsworth counted its fire loss today at close to $3,000,000 and 400 persons homeless, the result of fast-spreading flames which racing before a high wind last night destroyed more than 50 stores and shops in the center of the business district, and more than 100 residences.

Mayor Harold V. Moore said today he had no doubt but that the property damage would approach the $3,000,000 mark.

City officials said they were convinced fire which broke out in an old frame building used as a storehouse had been started by an incendiary.

The devastated area, two miles long and one-half mile wide, comprised roughly one-fourth of the city's residential district and one-half of the business section.

LINDY DELAYED; MISSES MEANS TRIAL OPENING

Jury in Kidnap Fraud Picked as Flier Awaits Clear Skies in Ohio

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—Gaston B. Means and Norman T. Whitaker, known as "The Fox," went on trial in District of Columbia Supreme Court today on a charge of conspiracy growing out of the Lindbergh case.

The charges against them involved an attempt to defraud Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $35,000, after Means already had swindled her out of $104,000 under pretense of being able to secure return of the lost child. Means already is under a long sentence for the swindle.

It took the court less than two hours to choose a jury, which included seven women, and the case was ready for testimony.

Tomorrow Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is to tell the court how his child was taken and later found dead. He and Mrs. Lindbergh were held in Columbus today by bad weather, which prevented flying.

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—(AP.)—Heavy weather between Columbus and Washington held Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh here this morning.

They had planned to start for the national capital shortly after 9 o'clock, Eastern standard time, but after looking over weather reports they decided to remain here until the weather to the east cleared.

The Lindberghs reached here last night, none the worse from battling a severe sandstorm that forced them to land in an isolated section of the Texas Panhandle and sleep overnight in their plane.

The noted flying couple, expressing regret that their delay had caused concern, Col. Lindbergh said of the Texas experience:

"People shouldn't worry. It's liable to happen any time in the western country."

It was better to land, he added, than attempt to go through a sandstorm.

FEAR TERROR'S EFFECT ON GIRL

DETROIT, May 8.—(INS.)—Fear that the terror of her imprisonment by kidnapers may leave a permanent scar on the mind of 10-year-old Margaret (Peggy) McMath was expressed today by her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. McMath.

"Oh, that's terrible. It just sets me frantic to think of it."

So said white-haired Mrs. McMath when she was told details of Peggy's confinement in a three-foot cell in which there was an open cistern. The child's grandfather, a wealthy engineer, added:

"It means that the persons responsible must be punished to the full."

The little girls' maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Kales, who also live here, were in Harwich today. Kales, a millionaire industrialist, is believed to have furnished the $60,000 ransom money which was recovered Saturday at the home of Kenneth Buck.

Ferry Slip Razed In $3,000,000 Fire

OAKLAND, Cal., May 8.—(AP.)—Investigating officials suggested today a carelessly tossed cigaret, its flame not yet extinguished, may have caused the $3,000,000 fire here Saturday.

The fire destroyed the Key Route Interurban-Ferry Terminal in San Francisco Bay, a ferry boat and rolling stock. It is believed to have originated on a ferry slip where a barge had been unloading fuel oil.

DELAY HARMFUL TO LESIC BOY

A long, difficult road to recovery lies ahead of William Lesic, 3, taken from his mother's arms by court order, because of the delay in sending him to the hospital.

Dr. Walter Zulauf, superintendent of Allegheny General Hospital, in a letter today to Judge Benjamin Lencher, of County Court, reported that five of the child's vertebrae were affected by tuberculosis and that the seventh dorsal vertebra was nearly destroyed. Dr. Zulauf reported:

"The child's general condition is fairly good, but there was some evidence on admission of inflammatory reaction around the spinal cord. It will probably be impossible to correct the deformity entirely owing to the fact that the disease is of rather long standing."

Burglar's Heart Softened by Poor 'Tykes'

RUNNEMEDE, N. J., May 8.—(INS.)—A burglar jimmied open the door of the home of Harry McMichael, unemployed mechanic, early today.

Evidence of McMichael's impoverished circumstances were readily apparent in the beam of the burglar's flashlight. On the floor lay the four McMichael children, sleeping.

On the table McMichael later found a note. It read:

Visiting Fireman Turns Critic and Lands in Jail

Two men, described as visiting firemen from Monongahela, looked on as members of Engine Company No. 43, extinguishing an awning fire at North avenue and Federal street. They "wisecracked," firemen said:

"This is a heck of a fire. They haven't even busted a window."

Fire Capt. J. McDermott made a lunge for the pair. He got one. The other got away. The man under arrest, charged with drunkenness, said he was William McIlvaney, of Main street, Monongahela. He was released in $5 forfeit by his friend, who eluded firemen.

MONONGAHELA, Pa., May 8.—Fire Chief Frank G. Myers today said:

"That fellow is not a member of the fire department, never was, and never will be a member."

WAIFS RELATE TALE OF ABUSE

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 8.—Dorothy Matheny, 6, who, with her sister, Helen, 4, was left at a bus station here 10 days ago, today told Mrs. Essie Sutherland, matron of the Children's Home, that she and her sister had been tied for a day at a time in their home and whipped.

Content with their new surroundings, the children probably will not long be wards of Washington County. Many offers of adoption have been received for the winsome pair.

No trace of the father, who formerly lived in Braddock, has been found. Their mother is dead.

SON WOUNDED, HUNT FATHER

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 8.—Five state troopers, under command of Priv. George Kercher, today are continuing their search in the Allegheny Mountains for William Henry, 56, a mountaineer, who yesterday shot his son, Elmer Henry, 18, with a shotgun, and abusing Mrs. William Henry, his wife, after the boy interfered in the mother's behalf.

The boy and his mother were brought to a Mount Pleasant hospital, where the youth's arm, nearly shot off, was amputated, and the mother suffering four broken ribs.

Police say the father shot his son in an effort to keep his wife from attending church.

Mrs. Henry stumbled into the village of Jones Mills looking for aid, declaring that her husband had stood guard over them all day with a shotgun. He fled into the mountains soon after nightfall.

KING SURPRISES MERMAID IN ROYAL PARK

Chats With Girl in Bathing Suit, Then Saves Her Job

By LAURENCE MEIER
International News Service.

WINDSOR, Eng., May 8.—The amazing adventure of a pretty little English girl who curtsied before King George on the banks of the romantic Thames with nothing to cover her shapeliness save a one-piece bathing suit came to light here today.

In this unconventional attire, 19-year-old Edna Brown made her bow before Britain's gracious monarch, not once but twice.

And instead of incurring the royal displeasure she earned smiles and a cheerful chat or two.

RADIANT MERMAID

Employed at a hotel at Datchet, across the Thames from Windsor Castle, Edna had her first encounter with the king when she emerged, dripping with water but radiant in her youthful attractiveness, after swimming the river from the other side.

She was startled when the king happened along on his magnificent horse, and the monarch was none the less surprised. But he raised his hat and gave Edna the following story to tell to her children and grandchildren.

"It was one of the first really warm days of spring, and after working all day, I put on a bathing suit and dove into the river.

"I thought it would be great fun to swim to the opposite bank. But I found that the current was so strong it carried me some distance downstream.

"I walked back along the bank to rest. At that time, of course, I had no idea I was trespassing on the royal estate.

FACES KING

"As I picked my way along the bank I suddenly heard voices, and then a lovely little Cairn terrier came barking towards me.

"The dog was followed by two or three people, gentlemen and grooms. One of the gentlemen was mounted on a magnificent black horse. I knew at once I was face to face with the King, and can you imagine my embarrassment. I was dumbfounded.

"The king, still mounted on his horse, raised his hat to me with a smile and said, 'Good afternoon. I hope you are enjoying yourself. Where is your boat?'

"When I told the King I had swum across the river he seemed surprised."

MEETS HIM AGAIN

The King watched while Miss Brown swam back, and two days later she encountered him again. This time he was on foot. She related:

"We spoke first of the weather, then of the glorious countryside, and then about the income tax.

"He is the greatest gentleman and the most kindly man I have ever seen. It will always be my proudest memory that I had the honor of speaking to the King—even if it did have to be when I was wearing only a bathing suit."

There was a sequel to the incident. The crown land office, apparently viewing the adventure differently than did King George, wrote a sharp letter to the proprietor of the hotel asking him to restrain his guests from trespassing on the royal properties.

As she was an employe and not a guest, the proprietor was able to take Miss Brown to task, and she felt obliged to quit her position. Townspeople learned of it, and the local vicar, the Rev. T. R. Potter, interceded with Lord Claud Hamilton, one of the King's equerries. When he learned what had happened, King George expressed a wish that Miss Brown should not lose her job, and as a consequence the girl expects to regain it.

Economist Sees New Troubles For U. S. if Trade Barriers Fall

By WALLACE B. DONHAM

Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, and one of the Outstanding Economists in America.

In an address delivered at the Wharton Alumni Institute, Philadelphia; reprinted from the Harvard Business Review of April, 1933.

The collapse of international trade is amazing.

The internationalist position is that trade restrictions destroyed this trade and that we cannot recover until international trade is revived by removing these restrictions.

In my own opinion, the collapse of international trade results mainly from serious overproduction of raw materials, stimulated by competition among the industrial nations and followed by the sharp fall of commodity prices. The living habits of vast numbers of people have changed.

Mr. Donham

This overproduction and price collapse is the primary fact and trade restrictions are mainly a result. In so far as this is true, removal of trade restrictions would not only fail to revive foreign trade, but would accentuate our domestic difficulties.

England, Germany and the United States built great industrial machines of substantially identical nature.

Long before the war bitter competition developed between England and Germany for export trade to a world typically not industrialized, but producing raw materials with which it paid for the products of the industrial countries.

We entered as active competitors just as our domestic industrial development had been stimulated to fever heat by war profits and the needs of Europe for reconstruction.

Our bankers thought to oust Great Britain from her post of leadership in international finance and engaged in frenzied competition to advance loans to all the world.

Our industrialists having in mind that an America without automobiles or radios came in a few short years to own one passenger automobile for each six inhabitants and one radio for almost every family, believed that a like process would take place abroad.

The export market looked inexhaustible and the home market one of assured high buying power. Industrial and financial imperialism held us all enthralled.

One little fact escaped us. Most of the world can pay for its importations of manufactured goods only by its exports of agricultural and mineral crops. By the middle 1920's we and Europe had so stimulated these crops the world over that there were on all sides unmistakable signs of overproduction.

Buying Power Failed

For a time our ill-considered balloon of foreign loans continued to make possible large exports of manufactured goods. But the basis for credit failed, and for this and other reasons England and the United States stopped lending. At once the far-reaching consequences of overstimulated production in raw commodities made themselves felt.

Prices dropped rapidly in accordance with the ancient principle of demand and supply. The buying power of whole nations failed.

In an almost hopeless struggle to maintain national credit, these nations imposed restrictions on imports. Their loss of buying power and consequent restrictions stopped our exports.

Currencies in many countries depreciated. This intensified foreign competition with our home industries and added to our disadvantages in foreign trade. Europe no longer needed to borrow nor could she borrow from us for reconstruction purposes. Vast unemployment resulted.

Affected at Home

Because our domestic policies were not elastically adapted to changes in the international field our domestic economy was upset.

Difficulties, arising out of our own international policies and out of European troubles, pyramided on defects and unsound policies in our domestic affairs and caused unnecessary troubles here. We should have managed domestic difficulties in ways which minimized the impact of world conditions. International troubles were always beyond any possibility of our control. Our only defense was to insulate ourselves against them. This we failed to do.

The big industrial nations are prepared to make the same things in quantities in excess of any buying power which can be created by the quantities and kinds of raw materials the world is equipped to produce.

Europe Must Win

No possible way exists to cure the condition through international measures except a return to laissez faire and the slow and destructive survival of the fittest in an era of fierce international competition.

Our international trade has declined more than that of any other important commercial nation. I believe economic and social forces make us least adapted of all industrial nations for present day competition in the export of manufactured goods.

The burst of foreign trade during and after the war was an exotic growth. Until we realize this, our national policies will be confused and our international policies inconsistent.

There are bad times ahead in the international markets, and we shall do Europe a disservice if we seek as powerful competitors to secure an increasing share in these markets. We shall not succeed, for Europe must win such a competitive race or be lost.

No international trade plan that involves our active efforts to expand foreign trade can be sound for Europe, nor can any such plan, even if sound for Europe, be a safe basis on which to rebuild our industry.

We should look afresh at our relations to foreign trade. How important has it been?

Our per capita exports in 1931 were only 4 per cent of our per capita income and 6 per cent of our per capita production. Shall we allow such small percentages to control our future?

Big Home Loss

We have lost less than 4 per cent of our volume in agricultural, mineral and manufactured production through the collapse of foreign trade, but we have lost from 45 per cent to 55 per cent of volume of manufactured goods right in the home market.

Shall we seek to restore the 4 per cent in the international field and to increase the volume of manufactured goods several fold, or shall we try to regain a far larger volume at home? We cannot do both.

We have in fact managed our national economy so that the destructive effect of international troubles is a maximum. We have let the international situation unstabilize great groups of our countrymen. The real question is whether this can be avoided.

No solution will work perfectly. But my critics would start without further ado by a flat 10 per cent reduction in our entire tariff structure, a reduction made without thought of its effect on any particular industry and its labor, or its varied impact on all protected industries.

CHARGES FALSE, FAY AVERS

NEW YORK, May 8.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Rudy Vallee has answered the alienation of affections complaint filed by Kathleen Smyth who charges the tenor's wife with stealing her husband's love. Nathaniel Cohen, counsel for Mrs. Vallee, said last night that the answer consisted of a specific and general denial of every allegation. The formal answer was served on Max Cutler, attorney for Miss Smyth.

Miss Smyth, who asserted she was the wife of Gary Leon, dancer, demanded $100,000, charging:

"Fay Webb Vallee wilfully, wickedly and maliciously gained the affections of Leon to entice him by offers of money and otherwise to leave me without support and go with her to Santa Monica, Cal."

The suit was begun on the day Mrs. Vallee parted from the tenor and went West. Mrs. Vallee characterized the action as absurd. Leon declared he was unmarried.

RUMOR!

NO GEAR SHIFT LEVER?

Writers have often spoken of a "car of the future with automatic gear shift control". This is no longer a rumor. The car is here! Reo has brought the future down to the present. Its amazing new invention—the REO SELF-SHIFTER—is by far the most revolutionary development since the self-starter. The gear shift lever is out. Old-fashioned gear shifting is out—when you buy one of these new Reo's!

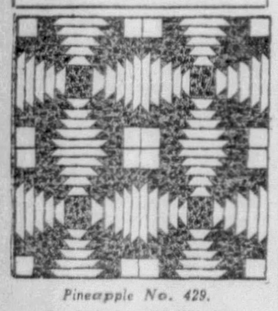
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Pineapple No. 429.

By LAURA WHEELER

The Pineapple, that popular motif of Colonial art, can be found in applique and patchwork quilts as well as in elaborate quilting designs. Its decorative possibilities inspired this patchwork quilt in which the strips, in contrasting materials, reproduce the spiky character of the fruit. Though made of a number of pieces, the block is simple to do, and makes a quilt pattern that is among the handsomest of those that have come down to us from the early quilt-makers.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

FRIGIDAIRE

You've Been Waiting For

$99

This new Frigidaire is remarkable in three ways. First for its economy. Second for its convenience. Third for its beauty. Never before has a low-priced refrigerator combined all three of these features to such an unusual degree.

Think of an electric refrigerator that uses no more current than one ordinary lamp bulb! Think of one that has automatic defrosting—automatic ice tray releasing—frozen storage space—plenty of room for tall bottles—¼ more food space inside with smaller outside space. And think of being able to buy it for $99! That's the Frigidaire.

The cabinet is lined with porcelain and finished outside with sparkling Dulux and chromium hardware. Here's style and beauty any woman can be proud to display in her kitchen. Come in today and learn how easy it is to own one under our convenient payment plan.

Commodities Soar to New Peak as the Dollar Declines!

We read it in the newspapers Saturday. Undoubtedly you did, too. Like a lot of us, you may have glanced at it and passed it by without a second thought. But it's the most important news TO YOU that has been printed SINCE THE SPRING OF 1931!

Here's what it means. First, that the dollars you have SAVED in the bank are shrinking. Say you had $100 in a savings account at the bank in March and haven't touched it since. You have only $85 now in purchasing power. And your money will buy less and less as prosperity returns.

Second, the dollars you SPEND now will buy more than they may again for years. So, if you've the slightest idea of fixing up your home or buying new clothes, we say DO IT THIS VERY WEEK. Everything you read can be boiled down to that!

F.R. TO PROPOSE CONGRESS WAR ON RACKETS

By LOUIS SEIBOLD
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—War on racketeers and their killers is developing along two lines.

The preliminary study of the subject by Attorney General Cummings is to be supplemented by a far-reaching inquiry by a subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee.

The Department of Justice is developing a plan to bring about more complete co-ordination between the federal and state governments, and as soon as the pending economic and unemployment legislation is out of the way, President Roosevelt will direct the attention of Congress to the racketeering evil.

COPELAND ACTIVE

Senator Copeland of New York, chairman of the Commerce subcommittee has introduced a bill making interstate traffic in machine guns and other weapons a felony.

Another feature receiving attention at the Department of Justice is the advisability of creating a "flying squadron," conducted under the joint auspices of both federal and state authorities, to war on racketeering.

There is now before the House a bill making it a felony for racketeers, killers and gangsters to incite crimes in other states. This is designed to promote agreements between states whose laws are now in conflict.

Congressman H. O. Woodruff, of Michigan, author of this measure, intends to press it without delay. He said today:

"There should be no halfway measures in meeting the growing criminal challange. Every day increases the menace to social security, largely due to conflict between federal and state laws."

BOLAN CHARGES MEN

NEW YORK, May 8—(Universal.)—Police Commissioner Bolan, in the first public address he has made as head of the New York department, yesterday charged 3,500 of his men to carry on an unceasing war on rackets and racketeers.

Speaking at a communion breakfast of the police department Holy Name Society of Brooklyn and Queens at the Brooklyn Elks' Club, he appealed for the support of law-abiding citizens. Bolan pledged all the resources of the police department, if necessary, to safeguard the lives and property of those who come forward and expose racketeering to the police. Commissioner Bolan said:

"The decent citizen has nothing to fear."

W. & J. Head Speaker At Mission Meeting

Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson College, will speak tomorrow night at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Young People's Missionary Association at the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. Members from all parts of Allegheny County will attend.

The Junior Choir of the Bidwell Street Presbyterian Church will sing. Miss Sara McAfee is chairman.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

"Let no guilty man escape!"

Long ago, that commandment was uttered by a President of the United States.

The time was 1875, and the President was Gen. Grant.

Something resembling in its small way A RACKET had been developing in this country. It was called the whisky ring, and Grant would not stand for it. His words were spoken, "Let no guilty man escape!" and the ring was broken up.

What would the hero of Vicksburg and Appomattox think today, were he living in the country he once served?

Instead of a SMALL whisky ring, he would find the country struggling to emerge from its great prohibition blunder, and ridden by HUNDREDS of rackets which prohibition bred or fostered.

He would see PROHIBITION GOING—but the RACKETEERS determined to REMAIN.

He would see business men paying racketeers unlawful money for their permission to carry on a lawful business.

He would see working men oppressed and levied upon by conscienceless racketeering fake labor leaders.

He would see children kidnaped and sold back to their homes for ransom, or else slain by their merciless captors.

He would see court witnesses intimidated, politics corrupted, and a lethargic people permitting these evils to multiply upon them.

He would see everywhere the ugly symptoms of America's MORAL DEPRESSION. And he would say to his countrymen, in righteous wrath:

"Unless these iniquities be stopped, this country will perish. What are you going to do about it?"

STRIKE CALLED IN UNION WAR

CHICAGO, May 8.—(INS.)—Following in the wake of the successful counter revolution by the gang-controlled officials of the Chicago Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers Union, a strike of between 4,500 and 5,000 members of the organization was called today.

The strike order was to affect every yard paying less than the accepted union scale.

Meanwhile John Sheridan, Jr., was back in control of the union following a bitter hand-to-hand encounter in which rival factions fought with guns, knives and stones at the organization's headquarters.

George Roy Baker, the insurgent who raided the offices and took over the organization, was able to rally only about 120 men when he attempted to hold a Sunday meeting. The fighting ensued when Sheridan, president of the regular group, and Milton Booth, Jr., treasurer, gathered nearly 1,800 members and were raided by Baker and his men.

High School Classes To Hold Benefit

The art and music departments of Peabody High School will present a show for the benefit of the Peabody Welfare Fund in the auditorium May 25. Art students, in costume, will give symbolic interpretations of the music sung by the Peabody A Cappella Choir.

"Skidding," the senior class play, will be given in the school auditorium Friday night. The senior prom will be held in the Schenley Hotel June 23.

CHURCH SIEGE MARKS TIME

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—All's quiet in the five-day-old "siege" of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, but a new loud-speaker system insures the "defenders" that their spokesmen will be heard should the situation change.

Unwavering in their determination to resist the transfer of the church from the Augustinian Order to the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, parishioners have named new "vigilantes" to hold the edifice.

They continued to hold "prisoner" the Rev. Simpliciano Gatt, an assistant rector, preventing him from obeying the transfer order.

Cardinal Dougherty yesterday visited the South Philadelphia section, where the "besieged" church is located. His eminence was given special police protection on his trip to confirmation services at another church.

Father Gatt held only his private mass yesterday.

Swanson Restores Concerts By Navy, Marine Bands For Radio Listeners

Speaking from Basle, Switzerland, Gates W. McGarrah, former American president of the Bank for International Settlements, is heard throughout this country via an NBC-WEAF nation-wide hookup tonight in a discussion of world finance.

To be carried locally by WCAE, the address, entitled "The Bank for International Settlements and the Monetary and Economic Conference," is scheduled for 15 minutes beginning at 8:30 p. m.

The sixth of the National Radio Forum's "Cabinet Series" brings Harold A. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, to the microphone over WCAE at 10:30 p. m.

Marines and Sailors

Another of the Rooseveltian official family, Secretary of the Navy Claude G. Swanson, comes into the radio limelight today, with the restoration to the air of the United States Navy and Marine bands, whose broadcast concerts were discontinued by former Secretary Adams shortly before the end of the last administration.

The Marines will be heard four times weekly as follows, starting Wednesday, May 17: Mondays, 4 p. m., WCAE; Wednesdays, 9:30 p. m., KDKA; Fridays, 11 a. m. (Shut-in Hour), 11 a. m., KDKA, and 4:30 p. m., WCAE.

The Navy Band will be on the air twice weekly over WCAE—Mondays at 11 a. m. and Saturdays at 11:30 a. m.

New Programs

Beginning tomorrow, four new series featuring Pittsburgh artists are to be introduced over KDKA—by Sarah Logan, contralto, and Earl Wilde, pianist, at 10 a. m., and Dolores Reade, Pettis Orchestra soloist, and Selma Brandt, pianist, at 4:15 tomorrow; Anne Woestehoff, contralto, and Oscar Davis, violinist, at 10 a. m. Thursday, and Mabel King, contralto, at 4:45 Friday.

Giving the last of a series of talks on birthdays of famous people, Lyman Beecher Stowe reveals highlights in the life of his famous grandmother, Harriet Beecher Stowe, on WJAS today at 4:30.

Viola Philo, soprano; Raoul Nadeau, baritone; Gregory Stone and Clarence Smolen, piano twins, and Josef Stopak, violinist, supported by Harold Sanford's orchestra, join to present "The Hour Glass," one-hour concert listed on KDKA at 10 tonight.

A special 30-minute concert by the Welsh Chorus, under the direction of Joseph Jenkins, is spotted on WJAS at 8:15.

Paradox

Acid Stomach Torture Ends

"Suffered for many years from indigestion. I could not eat any acid foods or fruits. I denied myself of almost everything," says Mrs. W. W. Odiorne, Portsmouth, N. H. "Now I eat anything and if I think it will not agree with me, I just take ACIDINE. ACIDINE is wonderful."

End gas, sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Maker guarantees ACIDINE ends your stomach trouble or money back. All druggists have ACIDINE, or for a free sample send your name and address to Acidine Sales Co., Dept. 85-G, 365 E. Illinois street, Chicago.

Opera Steals Martini From Radio

By AIRCASTER.

Nino Martini, young Italian operatic tenor singing twice-weekly over CBS-WJAS, has been signed by Metropolitan Opera for the season 1933-34. Martini, whose popularity has been built up primarily by radio—reversing the usual trend—is the first aerial artist to be chosen for Met billing.

Dick Liebert, former Penn Theater organist now presiding at the Radio City console, and Frances Langford, little southern blues singer discovered by Rudy Vallee, are teamed on NBC-WCAE tonight at 11.

About Musicians

Pittsburgh broadcasters' latest move means good news for the local musicians' union, for effective today, according to an announcement by Oliver Morton, station manager of KDKA, union members only will be numbered among their station's regularly employed musicians.

The order will not affect singers, amateur musicians or ukulele players—the latter not being recognized by the local union as "instrumentalists."

Although a similar order is, or will be, enforced in a number of NBC-managed stations throughout the country, the KDKA move, according to Morton, is entirely voluntary with an eye toward general improvement in local programs.

MUSIC

Yost String Quartet
And Mildred Dilling

PROGRAM

Quartet in E Minor.....Smetana
For Harp Solo
Bourree.....Bach
Etude de Concert.....Godefroid
Clair de Lune.....Debussey
Grey Donkeys on the Road to Fi-Zib.....Tournier
Legende des Elfes.....Renie
Introduction et Allegro for harp, strings, flute and clarinet.....Ravel

In the beautiful setting of the music room in the residence of Mr. John C. Slack, Sewickley, the Yost String Quartet gave its closing concert yesterday afternoon. Mildred Dilling, harpist, was soloist and added mightily to the interest of the concert.

Mr. Lissfelt

The quartet played only the Smetana Quartet as its contribution to the program, a rather exacting work for ensemble and nice effects. The players were not so successful with this music as later with the Ravel, when they were joined by Victor Saudek, flutist, and Domenic Caputo, clarinetist, to make the lovely background for the harp solo of Miss Dilling. Here they seemed to be less restricted and abandoned themselves to the leading motifs of the harp.

Ravel has departed in this score from the obvious glissando and pluckings which too often characterize the music adapted for the instrument and has written a work which compares favorably with other excellent contemporary chamber music. Miss Dilling's part in the ensemble was brilliant and extremely forceful.

As in her solo numbers her playing is graceful without becoming sentimental, and yesterday she surely ran the gamut of expression within the limitations of the harp. There was humor in her trotting donkeys and the broadcast musical dynamics in the Renie "Legende." In two encores a "Music Box" and Tournier's "Vers la Source dans le Bois" she touched the styles of the old and news schools in imitative music.

Cantor Vigoda

Last night a large audience heard the Cantor Samuel Vigoda, of Budapest, give a very original musical program in the Tree of Life Synagogue. There were ritual songs from the cantor's own pen, some modern operatic airs—from "La Juive" and Puccini's "La Tosca," also "Ye People Rend Your Hearts" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah"—and a group of Jewish folk songs.

As long as Cantor Vigoda remains with traditional Hebrew music he is intensely interesting and instructive as well. He is a very musical person with a good voice; he knows the idiom of oriental music and skillfully adapts his voice to the falsetto, roulades and trills that make this music so peculiarly fascinating. But he is not gifted as many other cantors are to sing the modern operatic music which suffers untold distortions in his handling.

Miss Bertha Gerson played accompaniments and Miss Della [illegible] played several groups for violin solo.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Add to your mysteries the strange disappearance of Mrs. Bracke's oriental rug.

She had just purchased it from a house-to-house salesman, who, after fluent persuasion, dropped the price from $60 to $29.

The other morning, anxiously arising to enjoy her bargain, she discovered that the rug was missing from the floor. She's not sure whether this was some kind of a racket or whether she had purchased the original flying carpet.

In a strange bequest, George Coleman, Monessen, was willed a few copies of verse. To have them published, get them copyrighted first and then send them to a publisher with the return postage enclosed in case of a rejection.

* * *

Miss Anderson, of East street, North Side, had an unfortunate experience buying from an unknown canvasser. She warns the Globe Trotter to make sure that they are satisfied with the represented firm's integrity and its agent before parting with any money.

* * *

Another use for discarded furniture has been suggested by Sister Felicita, of the Roselia Foundlings asylum. The articles would come in handy for summer home to be established for the "run arounds." Call Sister De Paul.

* * *

Some wise trolley rider says he thought the Globe Trotter was the motorman of the 77-54 trolley line.

* * *

Another reason why the job's so nice.—"Allow me to thank you for spreading a little cheer in the Uniontown Hospital and to me personally," writes Joey Speigal, injured boxer.

* * *

Bobby Kerr, 4-year-old, McKeesport, heard somebody sing the "Old Kitchen Kettle Kept Singing a Song" and now wants me to duplicate it. If I do I'll give you plenty of warning to get the ear muffs out.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

With Powder...

They Found an Easier, Quicker, Better Way to Whiten Teeth

Once you use Powder—you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing

Do As Your Dentist Does . . . Use POWDER

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

The spring flower show of the Fox Chapel Garden Club, which has been postponed from May 10 to May 31, promises to be a gay affair.

First of all, it will open at the Pittsburgh Field Club at 3 o'clock that afternoon, with the exhibits arranged in the sunroom of the club. Tea will be served, and a dinner held later at the clubhouse for members of the Garden Club.

Miss Esther V. Flynn, chairman of the affair, tells me that this year is the first time the show has ever been open to the public.

* * *

Over the week-end everyone has been sighing for a return of warm days and sunny skies after the dreary chill rain of the past week. And the reason? So they may play golf.

Golfers Restless

The formal opening of golf days at most of the clubs has come and gone with little playing because the weather was too much to struggle with as far as most of the women golfers were concerned.

If the weather is kind this week, Longue Vue and Allegheny Country Club women will have their first day of real playing tomorrow, the Fox Chapel Golf Club Thursday.

On Friday the Edgewood Country Club plans to have its opening golf day with golfing in the morning, followed by a 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. William F. McCrady is chairman.

NEW FASHIONS DISPLAY THE VERSATILITY OF BLACK PIQUE

FASHIONS have become so exciting. Fabrics, instead of staying demurely in the classifications that we had given them for so many years—ginghams for the kitchen and silk for the parlor, have jumped their bounds. You cannot tell now by the material the time of day or place for which it is intended. And the same thing has happened to colors. The old familiar piques and linens, for instance, that you could depend upon finding in a limited number of delicate shades, are now made in dark, rich colors that widen their appeal and increase their smartness.

* * *

BLACK PIQUE is outstanding of this year. We see it in beach clothes and for evening, and for every other hour of the day. The wrap-around dress at the left is designed for the beach. The short, impudent jacket is very broad shouldered due to the two-tiered effect of the capelets, and gives a decided 1933 look. The dress is low-backed and the blackness is emphasized by the large white pearl buttons down the side which mark the closing.

* * *

THE DRESS at the right is also black pique and is for those not-too-formal evenings. The romance-stirring black pique capelet covers a bodice of white lace, decorated by a corsage of stiffened crochet flowers. The white corded pique collar adds flattering note next to the face. The very full swishing effect of the skirt is the result of clever bias cutting. Dresses on this order look fresh and crisp and important, in spite of the former associations of cotton.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Every Person Can Be Master Over Own Temper

Ever let temper trip you up?

Turn you from a controlled, self-respecting human being into a jungle fiend—screaming abuse at some one you loved—mouthing poisonous things you "didn't mean" and now would give your heart not to have said?

You have? Which one of us hasn't! And who'll dare "throw the first stone" at the tamed and heartbroken man who now tells us his story.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Will you please try to help me?

I have read so many of your articles and you seem to help others, so in my misery and regret I am coming to see if you can't do something for me.

I am a middle-aged man. I have been married for many years. I don't know just how it happened, but my wife and I had an argument that turned into a bitter quarrel.

I said a lot of things to her that hurt her and now she has left me. She has been gone for three months and I haven't had even a word from her, since she left.

We have five children. My oldest daughter is taking care of them now, but if my wife doesn't come back, I don't know what I will do. I love her. I am sorry for the things I said to her. I didn't mean them. I just said them because I was in a passion of rage.

What can I do to get her to come back?

The children are always crying, and asking for her, and I feel just as terrible as they do about it all. I don't know how I will ever get along without her. I swear that if she does come back I will guard my tongue, and never say such things again.

WANTS HER BACK

I need her. The children need her. What can I do for them if I can't get her back? I am so worried and so wretched! My whole life is just about wrecked.

Do you think I can persuade her to come back? If so, how? Please held me if you can. I am nearly crazy.

I will be waiting, anxiously, for your answer.

P. O.—A Heartbroken Husband.

Help you? You have to do that job for yourself, brother. But perhaps I can give you a start.

First off, before you even try to find your way back into your wife's heart, how about doing a little searching of your own heart? Tempers don't just happen. They start a long while before the guns finally bark. Sometimes one tantrum is years in the making, and has strange and twisted roots.

Why did you lose your temper? Not just "because you were mad." There may have been quite a different reason. Some secret fear, some hidden hurt, some old disappointment—these are the roots from which the vicious fruit of anger springs.

SHOULD APOLOGIZE

No use trying to eliminate the fruit unless you dig up the roots, my friend. But if you've once done that, you'll not only eliminate the tempers, but you'll sweeten and straighten your whole life.

And now as to the wife—what should she do? What would you expect her to do if she'd been in the wrong and given you a mean tongue lashing? You'd be hoping, wouldn't you, that she'd come and admit frankly that she had been in the wrong and ask you to forgive her?

Then do the same to her. Hunt her up. Tell her, as you've told me, that you're sorry for the things you've said. Tell her that you love her and need her. Thank her for the years during which she has made you a home.

Admit to her—and to yourself—that life would have been a dreary business without her, and that its sweetness is gone for you and the children forever, unless she come back again.

Say those things and mean those things—and live them afterwards—and I'll wager you'll never need another such lesson.

Fay King Advocates Regard for Sincere Sentimentality

By FAY KING

It seems that most persons today are ashamed to be the least bit sentimental about anything.

They pretend to be only bored and hardboiled about everything, and are careful to cover any sentimental thought or expression with a wisecrack and a laugh.

Sincere sentimentality is a strong and lasting bond. It is that tender loyalty that gives such great worth to anyone and anything we hold dear.

Don't stifle your sentimental feelings. Sentiment is the very essence of love, friendship and regard.

It is often that priceless good will that money cannot buy in business.

In their effort to be different and up-to-date modern have succeeded in making sentiment seem ridiculous. But without it much has failed miserably lately.

We need it again.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Stuttering Curable If the Sufferer Perseveres

Dr. Copeland

It is surprising how little the general public knows about these conditions, their causes and the measures which may be employed for their relief or cure.

Stuttering is a defect usually caused by a spasm of the muscles used in the production of speech. The vocal organs of the stutterer do not actually show any abnormality. The fault lies in the lack of nervous and emotional control by the sufferer. The difficulty in speaking arises from fear, and not infrequently develops in a slow-thinking person who tries to keep pace with his rapid-thinking companions.

It happens often that stutterers suffer from an inferiority complex. Their inability to express themselves easily confines their activities to a very limited field. They become increasingly self-centered, neurotic, depressed, and often irritable.

It is a curious fact that stutterers usually speak without any impediment when alone. They can read aloud or sing as well as any normal person. This is because the speaker forgets himself and loses his fears.

The process of speech is complicated. First there is the mental part, the pausing for thought, then comes the breathing, next is the making of sound; and lastly the articulation. By this process are produced the combinations of vowels and consonants which form words.

When the words do not come naturally, the speech is labored. Then the muscles of the neck become tense and rigid.

Stuttering usually begins in childhood. Some shock, fear and the imitation of another who stutters, are among the most common causes. Sometimes there is no definite cause that can be discovered. But in all cases a nervous system, unstable emotionally and nervously, is associated with it.

Stuttering is difficut to cure, but not necessarily impossible. If the patient's confidence and co-operation can be gained, great benefit will result. The loss of courage is the first factor to be overcome. To insure success a strong desire to be cured must be developed, if it does not already exist. Maladjustment in home life must be corrected and a strict adherence to health rules insisted upon. To eliminate fear, to teach the afflicted person to speak slowly, to help him in the fight for control of the nervous system, are essential to cure.

If your child has any speech defect do not wait until it is a fixed habit. Try to correct the trouble at once.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Learns License Number of Owen's Car

Had Ronald been able to find out the license number of the car which was bearing Marion away? Common sense told me that he would not have dropped the little silken bag of stones if it did not contain the number, for that was the agreement we had made before he made his memorable sprint and leap to the back of the retreating limousine. But, I argued, if Ronald were as nervous as I, he might very well have become confused as to the directions I had given him, and might simply have dropped the bag as an indication that the car was still on the road, even though we had agreed that he was not to waste one except at a cross roads, as a guide to the direction the limousine had taken.

So shaken, so fanciful was I that it was fully a minute before I screwed my courage to the point of opening the little bag that I had fashioned so hurriedly. There were the stones which Ronald had picked up on the trail, and which we had tucked into tiny bags fashioned from pieces hurriedly slashed from my silk neck scarf as we walked down the path. And—yes; here was a jaggedly torn piece of paper upon which were scrawled figures and words.

Very irregular were those words and figures, yet fully legible. I doffed a mental chapeau to the lad who had performed this feat of derring-do for his liege lady as I read them over, and saw that Ronald not only had written down the license number of the car, but the color, dark blue, the make and the type, all while perched upon the rear of a car careening along an uncertain winding road at a tremendous pace.

MEMORIZES NOTE

The first thing of which I was conscious after reading the message was the fact that I must not depend upon the piece of paper for the information it contained. Possessing a memory which my little mother trained from childhood, and which those who know me are flattering enough to term uncanny, it was but the work of a few seconds to fix firmly in my mind the information given in Ronald's message. But I did not destroy that jagged, blurred little scrap of paper. Instead I tucked it safely away in a secret pocket of my coat, my money pocket, and promised myself the pleasure of showing it to Marion when we should find her, and of relating the tale that it adorned.

When we should find her! My throat constricted with sudden fear as I realized anew how long a road we had yet to travel before the darling of us all should be restored to us. True, we knew now where she was. Ronald, unbeknown to her captors, was perched on the rear of the limousine that was carrying her away; Hugh and Dickey were checking her course from the air, while I was plodding along below, hoping that sooner or later some car would come along to whose driver I might appeal for aid in chasing the car which held Marion.

ANOTHER PROBLEM

Just how I was to appeal for aid from a passing motorist, without betraying the secret we were trying so hard to keep from the police and the public, I did not know. I must think up some plausible story before I accosted a driver with a plea for aid.

It would be a task to invent a plausible reason for the services I would have to demand of a motorist, I told myself. I could visualize the surprise, well-bred or openly ridiculing, which would greet my request to take me along the road, stopping at every cross roads while I hunted for a little silk bag of pebbles that should indicate the direction taken by the car I was trailing.

And yet, there was no other way out of it. The limousine with Marion imprisoned in it, being taken no one knew whither, was receding faster and faster, while I, walking after, belonged in the same category as King Canute, who tried to stem the tides of the ocean with a command. I was as helpless as he to accomplish what I wished.

The purr of a motor behind me the next instant swung me around as if I were pulled by a chain. Then a big maroon sedan came to a brake-shrieking stop beside me, and a jovial voice with a foreign accept hailed me:

"Hello, sister! Don't you want a lift?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Girl Speaks First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A club I belong to is equally divided on the correct form of greeting. If a boy and girl meet in a hall at high school, or on the street, who is supposed to say "Hello" first, the girl or the boy? DOROTHY.

There's a very definite rule about this—that the girl is always given the prerogative of being the one to acknowledge acquaintanceship with a boy. In the world of etiquette. A boy or a man waits for a girl or woman to bow first, or to speak first, or to first extend her hand for a handshake.

A Grand Birthday Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please publish soon an answer to this: Would it be proper to give one's financee the engagement ring on her birthday as a present, especially when one cannot afford an extra present? MAN READER.

This is an especially happy-thoughted thing for a fiance to do, I think; and I am sure that The Girl will be delighted. Such an important event occurring on such an important and personal day will make glorious and unforgettable memories.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: There's lots more to the resignation of McKee . . . Am trying to get the lowdown . . . The head of the firm that made the movie about the Presidents called, Said it wasn't intentional on their part to omit Herbert Hoover, They are making a new recording in which Hoover's name will be heard, however . . . Just got a call about McKee again . . . Another rumor is that he was told that if he ran for Mayor again Tammany would run Al Smith . . . I wonder how much there is to that? Not much, if you ask me . . .

Hey! Get a bigger hat! A package with no other marks on it but "Mr. O. K. America" has come via the postoffice from the Graphic Arts Company of San Francisco. Fancy that! . . . The California grammar text-book says: "Never use a preposition to end a sentence with." Clever?

Andy Volstead, after whom the dry law was christened, was censured by a Presbyterian minister who claimed Volstead wasn't dry enough! . . . All kinds of response on the "Miss a Meal and Buy Three" plan . . . The other day you were thinking of a movie short plot about an old mother looking for her daughter, who goes with a horn tooter and won't support her in her old age? . . . Well, such an old mother wants you to help her find such a daughter in town! . . . An actual talkie of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" (no blue-pencilling!) is being privately shown in Hollywood these nights. Made in Czecho-Slovakia under the name of "Ekstasz" (ecstasy?) . . . And the climax of the flicker is the same as the book's—none of the details being omitted! Paramount owns it! The leading lady of it will soon be starred in H'wood . . . The Three Roberts of the "Ha-Ha Club," for whom you first sounded the horn when they came to New York, finally got up in time to keep an appointment, and as a result got an NBC contract.

A Mr. Howard called. Says why not call the Portrait column "Winchelloquy" . . . Seems to me you did once! . . . By the way, I hear that 85 per cent of the white cotton gloves worn by the police here are made in Germany. Why? Have we no cotmills or glove firms here? . . . A police sergeant in Queens took his pay check to the city tax dep't to pay the taxes on his house—and they refused to accept it! . . . Did you ever promote $500 bail in a jiffy for Rheba Crawford, the Salvation Army girl, when she was arrested at 46th and B'way for "obstructing traffic"? . . . She doesn't forget it, if you did, when she reminisces.

Circumstantial evidence is a terrible thing . . . A night club waiter standing near the 50th St. subway kiosk the other dawning was reading a paper, and a Greek who had been robbed of a ten spot and 7 ones pointed him out to police as the stickup man . . . Upon search, they found two tens and 7 ones in the waiter's pocket . . . So he did two weeks in the Tombs waiting a hearing and was freed the other day at trial . . . He had just been paid $27 salary (the waiters there pool their tips), poor fellow . . . The Greek admitted he had been here 19 years and still couldn't read English, so how could he be sure of anything?

Flora Sheffield, the actress (I forget her marriage tag) will blessed event in September . . . The real name of the Wilson Wright who did "Man Wants But Little" (a hit) is William Reitzel . . . A girl who won two tickets in a newspaper contest to see "Strike Me Pink" went to the box office and asked for the money instead. Probably hungry . . . Can you find out if Alan Jones (Frances Williams' former heart) and Peggy Ring were married December 8th at the Municipal Bldg? . . . Frank Kent himself told a magazine editor he didn't ghost Alice Longworth stories. Locals are inclined to believe him, so say so . . . The ad writers for "Central Airport" can't make up their minds on which eye to place the patch to cover Barthelmess' bad orb. One day the patch is on the left and the next vice v.

Lola Lane has Tommy Tomlinson to help her forget . . . Miriam Hopkins invites her ex-groom and her current heart to all her parties . . . Johnny Green has dedicated his new ditty "You're Mine" to Claudette Colbert . . . Duke Ellington's crew will be the first American band to be permitted to play in England for a long time . . . They leave next month. Baron Lee's band succeeds at the Cotton Club . . . Verree Teasdale's new interest is Harold Layton, the flicker magnate . . . Gary Cooper is having such a time trying to get Lilian Harvey to listen to reason . . . The ex-Baroness Von Romberg, just divorced there, has Johnny Weissmuller trouble—but Lupe still is his squaw . . . The newest late spot in town is the "Walkathon" (half-dancing and half-walking) at the 52nd Street Rink near the Guild . . . I read part of Warden Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" and you can tell him that I'll always be a pretty good girl.

Foster Given Lead In 'American'

Because of a change in production plans Preston Foster will have the leading role in "The American" in place of Spencer Tracy, as previously announced. "The American," is the Sol M. Wurtzel production by Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, suggested by incidents in the life of Anton Cermak, Chicago's martyred mayor. Hamilton MacFadden will direct the film.

Mr. Foster, before going to Hollywood, was in several Broadway productions. He apeared in the screen versions of "Two Seconds" and "The Last Mile."

GLENDA FARRELL OF "GIRL MISSING" CAST WAS FOUND BEHIND A SHRUB IN THE STUDIO

Grant Moves Up Front Quickly

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 8.—Barely more than a newcomer to the screen, Cary Grant is being promoted to character leads, parts such as William Powell, Warren William and a few other seasoned players have monopolized in the past.

News of this bit of good luck came out when Paramount assigned Cary to play the title role in "Big Executive," the story of a ruthless business man who got everything he wanted until he set his ambitions upon a girl.

Mr. Grant

The hero of this Alice Duer Miller serial is unsympathetic throughout a good deal of the story. He is so different from the straight leading man type that Paramount first thought they had to have Bill Powell to do the part. Then they looked at Cary Grant's work in a similar role in "The Eagle and the Hawk" and changed their mind.

Naturally, Cary is elated over the opportunity to play a character with a little iron in him. And just to insure that there will be iron, Paramount has hired Laurence Stallings to make the adaptation.

* * *

Did you know: That Richard Arlen's first entry into a studio was made on a stretcher. His leg was broken in an accident in front of Paramount.

Boland, Arlen, Roberti Get Lead Roles

Mary Boland, Richard Arlen and Lyda Roberti have been assigned leading roles in B. P. Schulberg's "Three Cornered Moon," which goes into production shortly at the Paramount studios, under the direction of Elliott Nugent. "Three Cornered Moon" is Miss Roberti's first screen assignment since her stage appearance with Jack Pearl and Jack Buchanan in "Pardon My English."

Hayes, Montgomery Co-Starred

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announces that Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery wil be co-starred in "Another Language," under the direction of E. H. Griffith. "Another Language" recently finished a run of more than one year on Broadway with Dorothy Stickney and Glenn Anders heading the cast.

Leslie Howard to Play In London

Leslie Howard will journey to London at the conclusion of his work opposite Heather Angel in "Berkeley Square," to appear in one of two plays, "Riviera" or "The Fire Bug"—he hasn't yet decided which. He plans to take the Howard menage along, Mrs. Howard, a governess, a tutor, a Scotch cook, his son and daughter and a troupe of cats, canaries and dogs. "Berkeley Square," the Jesse L. Lasky film version of the John Balderston play, is well along in production.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

"Sees All, Knows All—"

NO MATTER how far you stray from the States or how long you remain away, you are always certain of finding two classes of suckers still flourishing when you return. One is the poor sap who hands his money over to a gyp concern to have his lyric put to music. And the other is the silly monkey who pays out good money to hear an even sillier monkey foretell what the future holds.

I got to thinking last night about the latter angle. The number of people who believe in fortune telling and such rot is positively amazing. Fake spiritualists and mediums continue to flourish, regardless of conditions. Many of their patrons can ill afford the money they spend, and most of them wouldn't trust their own mothers with a dollar and a quarter. Yet they fall for the bunk in lamblike fashion.

Such being the case, let's consider the case of the good woman who, for the purpose of this little tale, will be known simply as Mrs. Smith. A simple soul, Mrs. Smith was a distinct boon to all those whose occupation consisted of dabbling in the occult. Call it curiosity or a strange mental kink, the lady was never able to resist anything in the form of a mind-reader or clairvoyant.

This went on for years and years. And when a mysterious female who called herself Louise Pettibone recently made her appearance in the neighborhood, Mrs. Smith was the first customer to appear in search of enlightenment.

Every Friday evening seances were held at Mrs. Pettibone's, and nary a Friday passed without Mrs. Smith in the circle. There, for the modest sum of 50 cents, she could hold onto someone's hand and learn that a vague and indefinite relative was standing behind her and dropping white roses into her lap. It was all very awe-inspiring.

Still better, when some particular problem worried her—or if she sought to learn if Mr. Smith's new blonde stenographer had anything to do with his having to work nights at the office—she hied herself immediately to Mrs. Pettibone's for a private conference with the spirits. Those private sessions cost her two dollars.

It now becomes my sad duty to tell you that Mr. Smith, the husband, was extremely skeptical about the whole business. He spoke to his wife about it—but not too often. He knew her temper. And he probably figured that when it came to weaning her away from the spirits, he didn't stand a ghost of a chance. Ha, ha.

Just a few weeks ago, the Smiths were robbed. The boys did a fairly thorough job, and everything of value, including the wedding silver, was carried off. Mrs. Smith, of course, was very much upset. She had a few sessions with the police, but they didn't move swiftly enough for her. So she helped herself to two dollars of her husband's money one early evening and marched down the block to consult Mrs. Pettibone, who saw all and knew all.

"I want to know who broke into my house," she told the medium. "I want to get my things back again. Go into your trance, Mrs. Pettibone. I know you can tell me."

Mrs. Pettibone sighed.

"Only if the spirits are friendly," she muttered. "Only if they are friendly."

The spirits were not only friendly that night; they practically moved right in. After Mrs. Pettibone had switched off the lights and dozed for a long enough time, her head dropped back and she began to talk in a high falsetto.

"I see shadowy figures in the dead of night," she chanted. They are near. Very near. But they are blurred. I can tell you only that they are males. And that is all."

With a shake of her head and a mournful sigh, Mrs. Pettibone straightened up again. But Mrs. Smith was far from satisfied.

"That doesn't help me," she insisted. "Tell me more. You must tell me more."

Back went Louisa into her trance.

"It is difficult to see," she began. "Things are—but wait! A message is coming to you from someone on the other side of the veil. It is a warning. Danger is near. The message says that your house will be broken into again. The thieves will return again. Tonight. And—and—that is all."

It was no easy matter to convince Mr. Smith that his household was in danger all over again. In vain, his wife repeated to him all that the medium had said.

"It's all a lot of hooey," he declared flatly, "and that Pettibone dame is an old fake. She doesn't know what she's talking about. Come on to bed and forget about it."

"I'm not going to bed tonight, William LaHiff Smith," she told him, "and run the risk of being murdered in my own bed. The police are fools, so I'll not call them. I'm going to sit up and watch. And you, sir, are going to sit up with me."

All night long the Smiths sat huddled near the telephone. They were ready to spring upon it on the slightest provocation. The wife held a stove poker; the husband a rusty shotgun.

Once or twice Mr. Smith tried to sneak in a little sleep. But his efforts were dismal failures. Mrs. Smith was very much on the job.

"You're not going to sleep," she whispered hoarsely. "Do you hear me? Wake up, I tell you. This is a serious thing. Do you want me murdered while you are snoring? You are not going to sleep, I say."

And so passed the night . . .

Came the dawn at last, and they both went to bed. Mr. Smith was soon unconscious, but Mrs. Smith couldn't rest. The night had passed without the expected trouble. The few effects that remained were still safe. There had been no bloodshed and no trouble. You'd think that Mrs. Smith would be very much relieved.

But she wasn't. She was troubled and uneasy. For the first time, the oracle had failed. Mrs. Pettibone had been wrong. There hadn't been the slightest hint of any trouble, nor even a fleeting glimpse of any shadowy figures. There had been no robbery.

It wasn't until the next morning that Mrs. Smith learned that the medium had been half right. There had been a robbery that night, and it had occurred right in the neighborhood, too. But the house that had been ransacked was Mrs. Pettibone's! . . .

Notes About Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

George M. Cohan, who will begin an engagement of one week in his new comedy, "Pigeons and People," in the Nixon tonight, comes nearer to having run the whole gamut of the theater than any other prominent thespian. His career ranges from boy-actor to vaudeville star, from hoofer to playwright, from song-writer to producer. His productions go all the way from variety skits, through farce and musical comedy, to drama, whimsy and unctuous humor. His inward soul has been revealed in sentimental songs, flag-waving (on the stage) and deep philosophy. His high motive has been to keep the stage clean and entertaining, and not one of the many dollars the American public has paid to him was received in exchange for material that was either shoddy, fly-specked or tarnished. Since the days, when, as a boy actor in an acting family, headed by a veteran trouper, Jerry Cohan, he kept the family in hot water through inability to hold within himself the idea that he was a great actor, and the companion thought that the company manager was a dumbbell, he has been a constant surprise. And always a happy surprise. He wrote his first song, "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?" when he was only 15, and his own favorite among all the scores of popular songs he has written, "Venus, My Shining Star," was brought forth when he was only 16. The fact that he was born on July 4 may account for his flag-waving days, but real patriotism was behind "Over There," his biggest song hit, written on the way to his office during World War times. He made his first tour, at the age of 8, as second violinist in the orchestra of a traveling company in which his parents were actors, and six years later he made his bow to Broadway in the act of the Four Cohans. The fact that he was the flop of the otherwise popular act so embittered him that he decided to become a song-writer. Later he reversed that failure. There has scarcely been a moment since in which he has not contributed something to the merit and progress of the American stage. If the theater had possessed more George M. Cohans it might not be in its present plight.

* * *

Next Monday the Nixon will open a three-day presentation of Lenore Ulric in a new Arch Selwyn production, "Hard-Boiled Angel," a comedy by Wilson Collison. The engagement will include a Wednesday matinee. Seats will be on sale Thursday in the box office. In support of Miss Ulric will be Paul Kelly, Catherine Dale Owen, Henry Daniell, Walter Armitage and Jane Farrell.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Forcing a Favorable Lead

The question of trump management is often the predominant one in cases where the final declaration is a suit. However, there are many hands the making of which depends not only upon the manner in which the trump suit is handled, but equally upon the order in which the other suits are played and possibly the elimination of one or more to force a favorable lead at a critical time during the play of the hand.

West—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 8 6 2 ♡ 9 7 3 ◇ A 6 5 ♣ 9 4 2
♠ J 9 4 ♡ A 8 6 5 ◇ Q 4 2 ♣ Q 8 6	North West East South	♠ K 10 5 ♡ Q ◇ 8 7 3 ♣ A J 10 7 5 3
	♠ Q 7 3 ♡ K J 10 4 2 ◇ K J 10 9 ♣ K

East made an ineffective effort to prevent a game contract by opening with one club, after West and North had passed. However, North and South, perhaps more encouraged than otherwise by East's Opening bid, went on to a contract of four hearts and West doubled.

West's opening lead was the club Queen, which was won with the Ace by East, who returned the Knave, South ruffing. The knave of diamonds was then laid down, South intending to finesse in view of West double, but West saving him the trouble by playing the Queen. The trick was won with the Ace and returning another club, which South ruffed. Two more rounds of diamonds followed, and then a small spade was led to the Ace. Next a small spade was led from Dummy, and East won with the King, only to awake to the fact that he had no further defense. A spade put South in the lead and permitted him to lead the established diamond. If a club was led, South would discard the good spade Queen and Dummy would ruff with the heart 7, if West discarded a spade.

The Declarer, through careful management of the trump suit and play of the diamonds and spades, was able to fulfill his contract and make his trumps separately.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What should be bid on the following hand in response to East's bid of one spade?

♠ Q 10 5 4 ♡ 8 6 ◇ A K J 7 ♣ A 9 5

Answer—Four spades. The hand is too weak to justify a Forcing Takeout of three diamonds. The Immediate Raise to game is a mild Slam try, and the Opening Hand will continue the bidding if he holds additional values.

EVERY girl likes to have lovely, trim-looking legs. It's easy—if you're careful to keep stockings always smooth-fitting by preserving their elasticity.

Lux is specially made to preserve the elasticity silk has when new—that wonderful live quality that makes stockings fit like a second skin. Rubbing with cake soap . . . washing with ordinary soaps containing harmful alkali . . . weaken elasticity. Then stockings tend to sag and wrinkle. The lifeless threads break easily, too. The slightest strain may start runs.

Mrs. R. Dingman washed 408 items with 1 box of Lux:

TONS OF FOOD GIVEN NEEDY

East End and East Liberty friends of Father Cox, as well as hundreds of others from the surrounding communities, turned out for the food benefit at the Liberty Theater yesterday, making it one of the most successful yet given for this worthy cause. It is estimated that more than 7,000 men, women and children brought donations of food as their "tickets" of admission and the majority of them were unusually liberal in the amount they brought.

It is also estimated that, in all, no less than five tons of food were turned over to Father Cox last night through the donations of the public and the co-operation of Manager W. D. Davis, of the Liberty Theater, his employes and the Sun-Telegraph. Father Cox has an acute demand from destitute families for all of this food.

While the larger part of the food will go to needy families, much of it will be employed for the breadline which is just as long as ever, notwithstanding the warmer weather.

The Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive furnishes the larger part of the money to buy meat and other necessities for feeding the 2,500 and more men and boys who come to Old St. Patrick's every noon for a meal. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

GRIM THREAT WARNS DETECTIVE TO QUIT HUNT FOR MAUG

DRY CHIEF, PITT INSTRUCTOR, DEBATE BEER

Cruea Blames Return On Rich; Educator Sees Crime Cut

Howard Blaine, University of Pittsburgh instructor, and the Rev. D. E. Cruea, district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, battled over beer in the First Methodist Protestant Church, Aiken avenue, last night in one of the few debates that got a decision.

Dr. Cruea won—because a collection was taken up for the league while Blaine sat on the platform and watched.

Dr. Cruea declared the prohibition issue did not elect President Roosevelt, but that empty pocketbooks and bank accounts did.

PREDICTS CRIME DROP

Blaine declared:

"By bringing back beer, the racketeer in the business is being eliminated. Speakeasy proprietors will tell you that they are selling mostly beer. I think beer will be the means of cutting out a great deal of the crime in the country.

"To show you the extent that beer has helped the country so far, I quote these figures:

"For rehabilitating the breweries there has been spent $360,000,000. For ingredients, $75,000,000; for kegs, $50,000,000; for advertising, $20,000,000; for bottles and trucks, $15,000,000 each; for cases, $10,000,000, and for labels, $5,000,000. The industry has put 300,000 men back to work and pays $150,000,000 to the government."

BUY BOOZE, NO SHOES

To this, Dr. Cruea replied:

"The Christian church brought in prohibition. Rich men and the brewers, with millions behind them, have brought beer back. It is safe to say that the money that is spent for booze cannot be spent for shoes, and the shoe industry must let out its men as a result."

Inferring that the rich men influenced the newspapers of Pittsburgh and elsewhere to fight prohibition, he added:

"The newspapers are wet today, will be wetter tomorrow and wetter still a month from now. The wets push their flaming, lying propaganda through the newspapers. I know of a case in Iowa where $10,000 was put down just to put questions on prohibition in the newspaper.

"I think the newspapers are unfair and ungodly and as traitorous as Benedict Arnold."

BEER'S RETURN BOOSTS TRADE

NEW YORK, May 8.—(Universal)—The first 30 days of legal beer brought an increase of $20,000,000 in food and beverage sales to 8,000 leading hotels and 20,000 leading restaurants in areas where its sale is permitted.

This is announced by the Ahrens Publishing Company, publishers of Hotel Management, Restaurant Management and Hotel World-Review, following a survey of the 25 states and the District of Columbia, where beer is being sold.

The survey showed also that more than $25,000,000 has been spent by these enterprises for alterations, repairs, new equipment and labor, and that at least $75,000,000 is to be spent within the next few months.

Edward H. Ahrens, president of the publishing house, said that managers throughout New York state are awaiting the rules of the Beer Control Board before going extensively into remodeling activities, but that elaborate architectural changes are in prospect.

Arrests of Drunks Drop in New York

NEW YORK, May 8.—(Universal.)—A drop of about 14½ per cent in the number of arrests for intoxication in New York City for the 30-day period following April 7, when beer became legal, is reported by the police department.

From April 7 to May 7, 1932, police made 535 arrests. In the same period this year the total was 458, a decrease of 77.

The figures will be forwarded to Washington.

New Hampshire Sets Repeal Convention

CONCORD, N. H., May 8.—(AP.)—Gov. John G. Winant announced today he has signed the bill calling for the election on June 20 of delegates to a convention to act on the prohibition amendment.

The bill was passed by the Legislature last week and, although the Governor had expressed himself in favor of having the election held in September, he affixed his signature to it late Saturday night, he revealed.

Prisoner Sent To Hospital in Police Beating

Rough treatment by police had sent another man to the hospital today, on the heels of the fatal beating of a prisoner by a policeman last week.

Thomas Garrity, 27, of Youngstown, O., arrested on a disorderly conduct charge near the Brady street end of the South Twenty-second Street Bridge, is in the Montefiore Hospital with a deep scalp laceration which required three stitches to close. He was dazed, attendants said.

From his bed Garrity told a reporter "the police beat me up." Attendants said he was not in condition to be interviewed.

At Oakland Police Station the written report on Garrity's arrest stated:

"He resisted arrest and the officers had to use force to subdue him, inflicting the wound."

Patrolmen Walter Fletcher and Thomas Crowe arrested Garrity. Fletcher said:

"Yes, he resisted arrest. We didn't use our maces."

Charles Painter, of McKeesport, arrested yesterday, is in McKeesport Hospital with a fractured skull, according to hospital attendants. Police Chief John J. Whalen said Painter was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

ALAN JONES HAS NEW 'HEART'

Alan Jones, the ex-Pittsburgh cab driver who became a piano-playing idol on Broadway, for whom Frances Williams, blonde singer, was going to "wait 10 years to marry, if necessary," has found a new heart, according to Walter Winchell.

In fact, he was married to Peggy Ring, a cute somebody last December 8, right in New York's municipal building, and nobody knew, Winchell hints today.

And only a year before—almost to the day—Jones was divorced in Pittsburgh by his first wife, Mrs. Bertha Jones, of 11 Alpine avenue, who is reported to have collected $2,500 from Frances Williams whom she sued for $100,000 on an alienation of affections charge.

Just when a lot of people were saying Jones and Frances were "that way," Frances' taste for love music switched to the stirring notes of a trumpet and she married Lester Clark, trumpet player in Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Man Found Hanging In Homestead Cell

Nello Lind, 40, of 1328 McClure avenue, Homestead, was found dead in a cell in the Homestead Police Station early today, apparently a suicide, according to a morgue report. The man's body was hanging from the top of the cell, his belt a noose, police said.

Lind, a friend of Homestead police and a brother-in-law of one of the patrolmen, asked officers on duty for a place to sleep shortly before midnight. He was found by a turnkey early today.

100 ROBBERIES CLEARED BY ARRESTS

Five Held in Roundup; Loot Found in Girl's Home

Activities of Joseph Vargo, 19, of 339 Third street, Rankin, and John Tomasic, 18, of 316 Third street, Rankin, whose arrest yesterday police declared cleared more than 100 robberies, were being checked today.

Va..., was arrested after a chase by Edgewood police yesterday shortly after he had been surprised in the residence of William Scheiss, Greendale avenue, the officers reported.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Tomasic, the police said, was arrested by Rankin authorities after Vargo had implicated him. Vargo's father, George, 44, was also arrested and, according to the police report, attempted to hang himself in a Rankin cell. Half an hour of first aid methods revived him.

The younger Vargo was taken to several places he was said to have told police he robbed in the last six months. The robberies were at homes in the Oakland, Squirrel Hill, Rankin, Homestead and Braddock districts.

HOME YIELDS LOOT

Vargo's reputed sweetheart, Viola Craist, and her brother, Clarence, 17, were arrested by police in a house in Smith's lane, Munhall, where police said they recovered radios, revolvers and jewelry described as loot. The two were held at the Rankin Police Station, charged with receiving stolen goods.

Police said the loot recovered amounted to about $2,000. Robberies in which the suspects are alleged to have figured totaled about $15,000, police said.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, May 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Now our President has been going along mighty nice, and our Congress members, both Democratic and Republican, have been decent, beyond all expectations. They have given him every power from mayhem to manslaughter, but if he starts asking for the sole and exclusive right to deal with this debt thing, he is going to ride his horse under the first limb he has hit.

Will Rogers

These debts have become imbedded into the people's minds like religion has and any time you come out on either side (just like arguing religion), you are going to lose, and change nobody's opinion.

Yours,

WILL.

Evelyn Tells How Thaw Pursued and Wooed Her During White's Absence

SYNOPSIS

In previous instalments Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has told of her shocking experience with Harry Thaw in a castle in the Austrian Tyrol, of her first meetings with gentle Stanford White, whom she really loved. Today she continues the story which she hopes will convince other girls that a fast, unique life is worthless, that a clean conscience and respectability outweigh every other thing.

CHAPTER IV.

"Grown-up" romance dropped out of the picture for me temporarily when Stanford White sent me to the exclusive DeMille School in New Jersey, but for a while I got along very well on schoolgirl flirtations. There were times when we were privileged to see young men—with chaperones present, of course—and I remember thinking at the time that I was probably the only girl in the school who had ever enjoyed romance without the benefit of chaperones. The girls, no younger than I, but so much less sophisticated would have been shocked!

The mirror room and the pagan swing which Stanford White used as a background for feminine beauty were, of course, in my mind. If I were insincere I would say that the memory of the secret I shared with Stanford White clouded my young life. Being perfectly frank, I have to say it did not. I loved him. But I had no thoughts of marriage.

Although even then, at 17, an ex-Florodora girl, I shared a room with the 15-year-old daughter of a Milwaukee lawyer, whom we shall call "Prunes," which was a nickname I gave her. She was a good sport, a peach of a kid, full of fun and mischief. We slept in an annex to the main building—a small yellow cottage across the road from the vice principal's house, under the watchful eye of Miss DeForest, one of the teachers.

School Houseparty Thrills

When the Christmas holidays came, Mrs. DeMille gave a house party lasting from Christmas day until the New Year, and the students were given permission to invite their brothers, relatives or intimate friends. We were all thrilled at the prospect of this party.

During the week of the party all the young men guests were housed in a special building.

One day we all went skating on the Pompton lake, chaperoned by the vice principal. There was a young man of the party, whose name if I remembered correctly was Fulton. He asked me to skate with him. The ice was thick on the lake and we started out.

I wore a costume of gray—a short skirt, a gray fuzzy sweater with matching cap and fuzzy angora gloves.

We skimmed over the lake and skated for quite a way to the other end of the lake where there were bridges and a deep, swift current of which we knew nothing—in advance.

All of a sudden there was a terrible noise. The ice cracked with an explosive sound. Cracks and fissures appeared in every direction. It all happened in a split second, and down we plunged into the icy water. We had skidded over the current where the ice never froze more than a half inch thick.

Young Fulton could swim, I couldn't. A few seconds later the swift icy current had carried him far from me. He shouted:

"Keep your head up! Throw out your hands!"

Although I obeyed I sank down into the water. Up I came and then I went down again. Once more I rose. This time I threw

We Should Win When We Fight In Our Own Ring

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Only thing that worries most people is who is going to get slapped with the price of the ringside seats.

Some of the big boys are getting nervous, knowing that the fattest cows get milked first.

However, it looks like we will all get our coat of tax varnish, spread very evenly over 120,000,000 people. And that's the way to do it.

Willing hands make light burdens, as the boy said when he grabbed the watermelon.

Reports Auto Stolen, Held as Hit-Runner

When Ralph Cheder, 29, of 1619 Sedgwick street, went to the North Side Police Station yesterday to report his automobile stolen, police arrested him as a hit-run driver.

They said Cheder had struck a fire plug. Two hours later he reported the machine stolen, police said. They also said he had no operator's license.

MORGAN, CITY SLEUTH, TOLD TO 'LAY OFF'

Note Comes as Pair Flee Farm, Eluding Carrick Police

A bold gangdom threat to "get" City Detective Thomas Morgan if he does not "lay off" in the hunt for John Maug, mob leader and prison fugitive, was in the hands of detectives today.

The grim message came as the detectives revealed Maug and Edward Turpack, one of his mobsters and fellow prison breaker, slipped through the fingers of police on a Baldwin Township farm.

Detective Morgan was one of the officers who arrested Maug and his gang in connection with the murder of Vernon (Port) Moses, Ross Township constable. He received a letter printed on heavy brown wrapping paper. It read:

"If you don't want to be filled with lead you better lay off Maug. If Maug don't get you one of us will and you will be pushing up daisies."

WON'T QUIT HUNT

The defy, Morgan asserted, only served to intensify his activity. He said:

"I helped to round up Maug and his gang before, and I will do it again. This threat to bump me off doesn't frighten me. If Maug and his gang think they can intimidate me and cause me to ease up on the search, they are going to be disappointed. I am going to work that much harder now that I have been threatened."

Detectives placed the responsibility for the escape of Maug and Turpack from the farm of Mrs. Hilda Goempel, Baldwin road, Baldwin Township, on a police lieutenant and two patrolmen attached to Carrick station.

HIDE IN CHICKEN COOP

Morgan said Maug and Turpack arrived at the Goempel farm early last Tuesday and asked Mrs. Goempel for food. They were spattered with mud and torn by briars. Both were fatigued and bearded.

Mrs. Goempel gave them sandwiches and coffee. She said Maug asked her if he and his companion could stay in the chicken coop, and she assented. She gave them blankets Tuesday night.

Later, Mrs. Goempel said, the men threatened her and her son, Jake, with death if they revealed their hiding place.

CHARGE POLICE NEGLIGENT

Mrs. Goempel said the police learned the fugitives were on her farm 24 hours before the raid. City detectives charges the police were negligent in not notifying them and blamed the police for permitting the escape through their delay.

Maug and Turpack were identified positively through Bertillon pictures by Mrs. Goempel and her son, who talked with them on three occasions. Mrs. Goempel said:

"These are positively the men. Each had a gun and threatened to kill me and Jake if we told about them."

Jake Goempel told detectives Maug threatened to kill him when he entered the chicken coop an hour before the police raid. He said:

"Maug stuck the gun against my stomach and said he would kill me if I tipped off the police. I believe they became suspicious after I left the coop, for I saw them running over the hill as I left."

Morgan said Maug and Turpack had at least three revolvers.

EVANGELIST PILOTS TROLLEY CAR

Claims He Has Found Inspiration on Daily Runs

Motorman-evangelist R. T. Klaas, of 10 Iona street, finds his street car aids in his evangelistic mission.

Klaas claims to have converted many passengers on his car who were "under the weather" mentally or physically.

He received inspiration for his own conversion on his car, when it was boarded some 12 years ago by a group of happy people from an evangelistic meeting.

A self-styled "home missioner," Klaas has been with the Pittsburgh Railways Company for 20 years. He is happy, he says, in both his life works.

Drive on Speeders After Boy Is Hurt

Jackie Scott, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Scott, 650 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, was struck by an automobile driven by Elmer Kelly, McKeesport, late yesterday afternoon.

He was taken by Wilmerding police to the McKeesport Hospital, where his condition was declared serious.

Following the accident, Wilmerding police checked the speed of motorists along Middle avenue for several hours yesterday, and made a number of arrests for traffic violations.

Garbo No Snob, Asserts Actor, Ex-Policeman

It used to be Inspector John Capp, but now its movie actor John Capp, defender of the great Greta Garbo.

Visiting friends here today, the former North Side police inspector, told how he graduated from chief of police of the Warner Brothers lot in Hollywood to the movies.

Capp was a member of the Pittsburgh police force 20 years before being pensioned. He will start his first picture in two weeks.

Of Garbo, who he has seen and talked to many times, he says:

"Many people think that she is a snob just because she does not go in for parties and a gay time. That is just her natural way of living."

MY OWN LIFESTORY
By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

my arms out wide. The current had carried me toward firmer ice. I threw out my hands and the fuzzy angora mittens stuck to the ice. It was a miraculous escape.

Rescued by Boy Friend

Young Pullon worked his way around in back of me where the ice was thicker and safer. He picked me up bodily and carried me in his arms, skating back to safety. The wildly agitated chaperon and the shrieking girls grouped around a fire they had built on the shore. The vice-principal marched me up the hill to the main building bathroom. There I was given an alcohol rub. I didn't even catch cold from the experience—and were the other girls thrilled and excited!

One girl said, more truthfully than she knew:

Stanford White sent me a fox terrier named "Ray Doodles." "Prunes" and I went for long walks and were always having picnics. I kept very quiet about ever having been on the stage. The girls at the school were all from very good families.

Then a magazine found its way into the school, with one of my pictures on it. More excitement. The girls found out I had been in "Floradora."

Now all this time while I had been in school, Harry Thaw had been cavorting around his favorite playground, Paris. He returned to New York, but was unable to locate me. I discovered later that he employed a detective who spent several days before locating even my mother.

Then a bad break.

For some time I had been suffering from mysterious abdominal pains in the pit of my stomach. I was distressingly ill. The pain was terrific. Suddenly, one morning, as I was just about to report for classes, I was seized with another attack. This time I was in violent agony, rolling on the floor.

Dr. Colfax was called. I heard him tell the vice principal I was dangerously ill. He suspected appendicitis and wanted to know how he could reach my mother or nearest relative. I told him.

My mother got in touch with Stanford White—who in her mind was still simply a fatherly benefactor—and Stanford sent a surgeon to the school.

Operation at School

They didn't even dare to move me to a hospital, so they operated on me right there.

Here was where Harry Thaw came in.

As bad luck would have it, Harry called on my mother just as she heard the news about my illness. Harry seized on the opportunity.

"Let me take you to the school," Thaw pleaded with her. "You would lose time wating for a train. If I cannot arrange for a special train, we will drive there in my motor car."

In her agitation over my condition, my mother forgot her dislike for the spoiled scion of the family which meant so much in Pittsburgh. She was only too glad to get to the school as quickly as possible.

The last thing I remembered before they gave me the ether was Harry Thaw on his knees at the side of my bed, kissing my hands. I was too weak and ill to care what was happening. I saw my mother, the doctors, nurses and Mrs. DeMille standing about the bed. Then blackness.

The operation was performed in a small school room. It seems I was desperately ill. They tell me I came near death and had to be kept under morphine for several days after the operation. When consciousness returned, I was too ill to speak! I couldn't utter a sound and the next thing I remember was Stanford White sitting at my bedside. There were tears in his eyes.

"Poor kiddie, poor little kiddie," he was saying.

Meanwhile, Thaw visited the school continually and bombarded Mrs. DeMille with flowers and flattery.

Soon his strategy began to work. Mrs. DeMille—and she had nothing but my best interests at heart—had a serious heart-to-heart talk with me about Thaw.

"This wealthy young man is madly in love with you, Evelyn," she said, kindly. "He tells me he wants to marry you. Now, how do you feel on this subject?"

My heart sunk. The very thought of it repulsed me, made me shiver.

"Oh, no, Mrs. DeMille! No!" I exclaimed. "I don't like him. I am afraid of him. I don't know what it is, but there's something about him that scares me to death!"

"That's enough," said Mrs. DeMille. "A young girl's instinct in these matters settles the affair. If that's the way you feel, I will say no more. I never undervalue a young girl's instinct."

Dr. Walker, who was my physician, was not satisfied with my condition.

Returns to New York

"I want you in my hospital," he said, "where I can keep you under constant observation. I don't like the temperature you are running. We're going to move you to New York in a special ambulance over to 33 East Thirty-third street."

They took me. There, less than ten blocks from the place where Stanford White and I used to meet.

There I lay for weeks, slowly recovering in a veritable bower of flowers. I had a constant stream of visitors. All my admirers deluged me with orchids, beautiful plants and other flowers.

It was about this time that Harry Thaw's youngest sister, Alice, married the Earl of Yarmouth, a poverty-stricken Englishman. The papers were full of it and he bragged and strutted over his alliance with nobility. For my part, he couldn't leave soon enough and Stanford White couldn't stay long enough.

In those days bedside telephones were a rarity—but Stanford White had one installed for me to help relieve the monotony of being in bed all those weeks.

Thaw usually called in the afternoon. Stanford White called in the evening, so the two never met.

I was getting stronger every day. Harry Thaw's position with my poor, unsuspecting mother was getting stronger every day. Meanwhile, intuitively I felt that something ominous was soon to happen. I had sensed that from the first moment I ever saw Thaw.

OTHER WOMAN, HUSBAND FINED

The marital troubles of the Anthony Alecks, of Renova street, were aired in Morals Court again today, and this time they brought in "the other woman."

Aleck and Mrs. Mary Fedkoe, 38, of 1907 Caldwell street, were fined $10 or 20 days in jail by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

Mrs. Mary Aleck, 24, testified she returned home unexpectedly last night and found Mrs. Fedkoe in her house. A battle ensued, she said, and ended only when Patrolman Joseph Shaner arrived and arrested Aleck and Mrs. Fedkoe.

Mrs. Aleck sent her husband to a hospital last summer with a bullet wound in the foot. She claimed he threatened to beat her. They have quarreled ever since their marriage four years ago, she said.

Gas Station Owner Beaten and Robbed

Dragged from his machine after being forced off the highway near Hillcrest, Martin R. Burgunder, proprietor of a gasoline station at Curry and Library roads, was robbed of $32 by two men shortly before last midnight, he reported to police.

Burgunder told police the pair apparently followed him from the gasoline station in their machine and that as he neared Hillcrest they crowded him off the highway and struck him on the head. A passing motorist took him to the Mt. Lebanon Police Station, where he received medical aid.

CONVICT THREE OF ARSON

A woman and two men were convicted today in connection with an arson plot in which it was alleged one of the defendants sought to collect insurance from a fire that burned his dwelling.

Bond was set at $10,000 each by Judge Harry H. Rowand when counsel for the three—Pauline Alifinoff, 28, Albert Zaleski, 20, of Cheswick, and James Skwortzo, 38, of Acmetonia—announced he would ask a new trial.

The prosecution alleged Skwortzo's home was fired last June 30. Zaleski, described as "the human torch," was arrested the next day at the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, where he was suffering from burns.

It was alleged Zaleski's clothing caught fire when he ignited kerosene in Skwortzo's house. The latter had insured the dwelling for $7,600 against fire, $3,000 against wind, and $4,000 against explosions, testimony disclosed.

McManus St. Man Fined After Raid

Felice Mackrelli, of McManus street, today was fined $100 or 30 days in jail on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. Magistrate J. J. Sweeney heard the case in South Side Police Court.

Police reported that when they raided Mackrelli's place last night they confiscated some moonshine. Two visitors, charged with drunkenness, were discharged.

DICTATORSHIP FOR OIL SEEN

A dictator for the oil industry of the United States was indicated today R. T. Eastell, president of the Washington Oil Company, said.

He had just returned from Washington, where on Saturday he conferred with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. Eastell was one of the committee appointed by Gov. Pinchot to confer on the oil situation. He was accompanied at the conference by Ralpuh T. Zook, Bradford; W. J. Brundred, Oil City, and Walter Jones, Pittsburgh.

Eastell said that Secretary Ickes probably would be named as the dictator of the oil production.

Bridegroom of Week Swallows Poison

Frank Sergi, 31, of Fourth avenue, Arnold, a bridegroom of a week, was recovering today in the Citizens' Hospital, New Kensington, after swallowing poison at his home shortly before last midnight, according to a police report.

DEVICE 'CURES' CROSSED EYES

BERKELEY, Cal., May 8.—(INS.)—From the physics-optometry department of the University of California today came a new scientific instrument—the "synchrohaploscope."

This device is designed to aid in the correction of crossed eyes.

George MacDonald, Berkeley instrument maker, and F. L. Mason, University lecturer in optometry, believe the new apparatus will prove to be more efficient than any yet produced for the stimulation of eye synchronization.

Mason said the purpose of the device is to stimulate eye movements which will give the eyes the direction which nature intended them to have.

Man From Here Hurt in Bus Crash in East

John Nelson, of Pittsburgh, was reported injured in a bus accident in East Prospect, near York, Pa., in which two women were killed and 21 passengers were injured, one probably seriously.

MAIDEN WIN MAKES DOPE ONLY WASTE

JUST HOW LITTLE the most careful studies of horse-racing form may be worth at times was brought home to the dopesters very forcibly in the fifth-ninth running of the Kentucky Derby. After the experts had made their selections from among a few of the more prominent starters on the strength of the races they had won earlier in their careers—colts like Ladysman, Head Play, Charley O. and Mr. Khayyam—along comes a horse that never had won a race in his life and picks off the big prize.

E. R. Bradley

Broker's Tip started four times as a 2-year-old in 1932 and was beaten every trip. He started only once this year prior to Saturday and was beaten again. Yet he was good enough to win the classic of the American turf, the only maiden ever to capture the Derby except for Sir Barton in 1919, and giving E. R. Bradley four Derby victories. Last year Bradley bet on his horse Brother Joe and his Burgoo King won, with Brother Joe last. This year Bradley offered to wager 8 to 5 that nobody could pick a horse that would beat Ladysman, including his own entry. And his own horse won. It shows again the folly of taking too seriously selections made hundreds of miles away, when even the owners can't pick 'em at the track.

THE NUMBER OF players shifted back and forth between the Cincinnati and St. Louis National League clubs in the last two years is almost enough to lead you to believe that the Reds have become part of the Cardinal chainstore system. You can't tell whether a trade is going to stand or be reversed later. Both sides gained something they needed in the latest six-player swap. The Cards plugged the shortstop hole with a fine fielder, but very weak hitter in Durocher, and the Reds took on needed pitching strength in Derringer and Stout.

Derringer is a good pitcher though he dropped from 18 wins in 1931 to 11 last year. Ogden, like Stout, has been used mainly for relief work, and Henry was a holdout who had not reported. It is doubtful if the Cards will keep Henry, a fourth left-hander. Adams has not amounted to much in any department this spring. The only drawback on the Red side is that Bush may have created a shortstop problem in improving the pitching staff.

THE FARMING OUT of Third Baseman Bill Brukbaker and Pitcher Ralph Birkofer to reduce the Pirates to the 23-player limit was in line with expectations. Birkofer was running ahead of Hal Smith at first, but the left-handers control is a bit off.

Both will return to the Bucs eventually, and in an emergency can be recalled on 24 hours' notice. Meanwhile the two will profit by further experience in minors during the time they will not be needed here.

LYN LARY is in a peculiar position as a member of the Yankees. With Frank Crosetti playing a great game at shortstop and Bill Werber in reserve, Lary has no chance to break into the lineup, and yet he can't go where he could be a regular, because the Yanks won't part with him, though they must drop two men by next Monday. Bucky Harris, manager of the Tigers, wants Lary and even made an offer for him, but it was rejected with the announcement that the shortstop was not for sale. Joe McCarthy's club is so well stocked with players that the kind of material another club can offer in a trade carries no appeal. Harris says a shortstop with a punch would help Detroit tremendously, adding that he is not thinking of the Lary who hit .232 last year and batted in only 39 runs, but of the Lary of 1931, who hit .280, led the Yanks in doubles and knocked in 107 tallies. Bucky thinks Lary is again the player he was two years ago, and so do many other American League men, but from the looks of things Lyn will have a hard time getting a chance to prove it.

Fred Brickell

IF THE PIRATES had not started Larry French in the second game against the Phillies last week, that split between Fred Brickell and the Quaker management would not have occurred and Brickell would not be back in the minors. It was because the Bucs were using a southpaw that Manager Burt Shotton sent Al Todd instead of Brickell to replace the injured Hal Lee in left field. Todd is a right-hand hitter.

And it was because Todd got the assignment that Brickell kicked over the traces and created a scene in the dugout by demanding his release then and there. The former Pirate said that for almost three seasons he had tolerated being denied a chance for a regular berth, but that when they sent a catcher out to play left field it was the last straw.

IT WAS WITHOUT the slightest delay that Manager Shotton granted Brickell's demand for a shift and released him to Kansas City. "We do not want a fellow of that type on our ball club," said the Phil pilot. "It is bad enough to have the club almost wrecked by injuries, without being forced to cater to the likes and dislikes of ball players."

At that the Phillies got a lot more service out of Brickell than the Pirates got out of Denny Southern, for whom Fred was exchanged in a waiver trade on August 7, 1930. The Bucs retained Southern only for the remainder of that season and then sold him to Baltimore.

RECALLING THE FEATS of many former stars who were much older, cue followers will be surprised at the decision of Edmund Soussa to retire from billiards because he considers himself too old for the game at 34. "I am only 34 in years, yes," said the Egyptian billiardist who came to this country to compete in the amateur championship 18.1 balkline tournament in Brooklyn, "but for one who lives fast, at the quick tempo always, 34 is very old. I have won all there is in amateur billiards. Three times I have been world champion. What is there to hold me? In the body, no, I am not old. But in the mind, yes, I am very weary."

OTHER BILLIARDISTS, SCOFFING at the suggestion that a cueist may be too old at 34, agree that a man is best at the game from 35 to 45. At that time he has accumulated the experience necessary for success in the complicated sport, and still has complete control of himself in a physical sense.

Soussa is a decorator, artist and designer. He designed the Royal Palace in Cairo. He was born in Alexandria and learned billiards from an uncle who was an experienced player. Though the game is supposed to have originated in Egypt centuries before the Christian era, the modern dwellers on the Nile played it rarely until 1908.

THERE NEVER WAS any question that the hockey play-offs were intended chiefly as money getters, but around the National League circuit there is considerable curiosity as to how the intake is split. It develops that the share of each player on the Toronto Maple Leafs was $920.10.

That's not to be sneezed at for an extra two weeks of playing, but the point is being raised that it's rather light in view of the large amount collected in the play-offs. It is estimated the players' pool was $36,000, and this is figured to be only 25 per cent of the proceeds. Baseball makes no secret of the division of the world series money, and hockey critics contend that the same open policy should be applied to the ice sport.

Billy Petrolle

SOME BOXING MANAGERS might be unscrupulous enough to keep a fading fighter at work as long as he could hold up his hands, just for the sake of the old financial cut, but Jack Hurley, who pilots Billy Petrolle, wants it understood that he doesn't belong to that class. Petrolle, beaten by Tony Canzoneri and Barney Ross, wants to keep on fighting. Hurley is urging him to quit, though the two still could make plenty of money. The manager says the Fargo Express still is young, happy and healthy, and he wants him to stay that way.

There was the time the authorities made him stop fighting because he had a bad heart.

They learned later that his main trouble was that he was undernourished—wasn't eating regularly.

Eddie Shea

Then, one night, he was sent against Johnny Datto, the Filipino dynamiter, with years of experience behind him, and was stretched cold from a punch on the jaw.

A while before that, when he was just starting, he couldn't stand to have any cold water run down his back, in his corner between rounds, and the fans used to get a kick out of seeing him wince and squirm as his seconds ministered to him.

HARD UPHILL CLIMB

It's been a long, hard pull up the hill for little Jackie Wilson, a genial colored boy of the East End. But gradually he has come along, trying, seeking to learn, using his head to figure out attack and defense, and today he stands out as one of the best featherweights in the land.

His record shows a draw with Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion, and victories over Tommy Paul, former N. B. A. featherweight champion; Johnny Pena, of Chicago, who ranks as a topnotcher; Ross Fields, of Cleveland; Jimmy Thomas and Mose Butch, local stars, and many others, and tonight he goes against another leader in Eddie Shea, of Chicago, in the 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden.

MAKES THE GRADE

It's a far cry from the days when little Jackie Wilson was just another kid among the preliminary boys, glad enough to fill up on hot dogs and soda pop after a fight. He's on his way to stardom, if, indeed, he hasn't already arrived, with his will-o'-the-wisp manner of boxing. Not blessed with a rugged frame, he has had to figure out a means of combating the more rugged men of his division. For instance, tonight he meets a compactly-built opponent in Shea, a chunky veteran with a devastating left hook.

Jackie uses his feet and hi long reach to keep out of danger. He doesn't take chances. He keeps on the move, circling about, moving rapidly and punching accordingly, not hard, but often. After four or five rounds of this constant tapping even the most formidable foe begins to slow down and then Jackie does his stuff, speeding up even more to pile up the precious points to win decisions.

They laughed at Jackie when he started out. When Datto

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE MONSTER MONUMENT—One of the most original monuments to be found anywhere was erected in 1897 by the city of Stuttgart, Wuerttemberg, in honor of the centenary of Wilhelm I, first Prussian king to become German emperor. The loyal burghers chose for the purpose the petrified body of a prehistoric fish, measuring 12 feet exclusive of the head. The diameter of its throat is 6½ feet. Its age has been computed at about 10,000 years. It already was an ancient pre-historic relic in the days of the flood.

CITY LEAGUERS IDLE TODAY

Rain and wet grounds today prevented the opening games in the City League.

The Book Club, champion of the league, was scheduled to open with the Cochrans at Olympia Park, while the North Siders were listed to pry off the lid with the Ackermans at Whitaker.

The Ackermans called off their game on Saturday when it was found that the playing field would not be in shape.

Games carded in the other circuits also were wiped out by the downpour.

The Homestead Grays opened their season in the Negro National League with a 10-inning victory over the Nashville, Tenn., club yesterday afternoon. The score was 2-1.

SPORT VIGNETTES

So it happens that I'm sitting in a barber's chair on Saturday afternoon and the talk turns to the Kentucky Derby . . . Walter, over at the first chair, likes Charley O, and Red likes Ladysman, and everybody else likes some other horse . . . Personally, I like Mr. Khayyam, on account of his very fine run at the Graw a week before.

Red is just finishing up with the hair trim when he gets to remembering . . . "You know," he says, "a big hoss racing day like this always reminds me about the time, 10 years ago, when I got a good thing and didn't get paid off . . . There was Slim, who used to drop in every morning with the good things and tell us what was what for the day . . . Then we'd place our bets and wait for the payoff . . . He'd come back in the evening with the form sheet all marked up and give us the good news, or the bad . . . He worked for a bookie and looked like an all-right sort of an egg.

"Well, sir, I'll never forget it. . . . It was the day before Thanksgiving, and Slim had a good thing. . . . This wasn't a time to put down a $2 bet . . . No, sir . . . So I go for it like a sailor on leave and say it with 10 bucks on the nose and five for the place . . . The good thing goes over and I've got about $150 coming to me.

"That night, at his usual time, Slim doesn't come in, but I don't think anything about it . . . Maybe he's out with the boys somewhere . . . Probably celebrating, because he would 't be giving out a good thing like that and not be in on it himself . . . But the next day he doesn't show up, either, and I get to thinking maybe he's sick, or something . . . But he doesn't show up the next day, either, and I begin to get worried, so when I get a chance I drop around to see his boss, and, casual-like, make inquiries . . . It seems Slim hasn't been around there, either; just sort of disappeared . . . So I ask about my bet, and I find it's never been turned in . . . But the bookie is a good guy, and he pays me back my $15 for good will and the good of his business, and says he'd even pay the winnings, only he's been hard hit on that race and can't afford it.

"That was 10 years ago, and I haven't seen Slim since . . . Maybe he's dead . . . Maybe he just went to some other town . . . Maybe I'll see him again, some time—who knows? . . . But I'm out that money . . . What happened? My guess is that he needed a little pocket money, and put the bet in his kick and didn't think it would win, anyway . . . It was just a tout . . . The bookie said he almost dropped dead when the good thing won . . . It didn't figure to finish the same day . . . Maybe his man bucketed some of those other bets that didn't go over; I'll never know . . . He paid off on the little ones that hit, but the first time I get a big one, he does a Houdini on me.

"Yes, sir, 10 years ago . . . A long time . . . Maybe I'll be seeing him some time—hmm! . . . You don't want a shave, do you?" . . . Mmmm . . . A shave? No, thank you, not today . . . Maybe on Monday, or Tuesday, or some day when there isn't so much hoss talk around, and the memory isn't so keen . . . No, not today. Not today.

Something ought to be done about this Kentucky Derby . . . It's too much of a closed book, with those Bradley dark horses running all through and around it . . . Here's this Broker's Tip coming from nowhere to win for the Colonel last Saturday, when he wasn't rated a chance and the Colonel himself had him in there only to give his Kentucky friends a Bradley horse to bet on. . . . He had Behave Yourself and Black Servant run one-two in 1921, and Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage repeat in '26, and Burgoo King come through last year . . . And now it's Broker's Tip—and who would take a broker's tip these days?

And where was my Mr. Khayyam? . . . Running eighth, and nowhere in the race from the start, after that great run at the Graw (Havre de Grace) a week before . . . At that, I guess I'm getting good . . . A year ago I liked Lucky Tom . . . Even got Louie Kaufman to bet on him, and the animal quit cold, finishing absolutely last . . . They had to send out a stable boy with a lantern to bring him in at midnight . . . At least, I was better this year . . . In another five years or so, maybe I'll have a winner . . . In the meantime, I'll do my own shaving.—HARRY KECK.

REDLEGS, CARDS SWAP STARS

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has given up two pitchers and an infielder to plug a big hole at shortstop with Leo Durocher, clever fielder of the Cincinnati Reds.

In a straight player transaction, Street traded Paul Derringer and Allyn Stout, right-handed pitchers, and Infielder Earl (Sparky) Adams to the Reds in exchange for Durocher and Pitchers John Ogden and Frank (Dutch) Henry. Ogden and Henry probably will wind up on one of the Cardinal farms.

The addition of Durocher should end Street's worries over the shortstop post, for talkative Leo is one of the finest fielders in the game. He is a weak hitter, but the Cardinals can afford to overlook that in view of his well-known defensive strength.

Street has been looking for a shortstop ever since Charley Gelbert suffered accidental gunshot wounds durin the winter.

CUBS SEEK KLEIN

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—Reports that the Chicago Cubs plan another determined bid for the services of Chuck Klein, Philadelphia National League slugger, strike the Phillies' manager, Bert Shotten, as funny. He asserted:

"It's a joke."

President W. L. Veeck joined his Cubs at Boston yesterday and was reported to be ready to deal fast and furious with the Phillies, Giants and Dodgers if he can get what he needs. Klein has been a much sought player by the Cubs for several years.

BOSTON, May 8.—Their numbered strength down to the limit allowed after May 15, the Pirates today were confident they were well protected for the big drive of the summer as they prepared for their first brush of the season with Bill McKechnie's Braves.

The Pittsburghers are in town for three games. As they tie into the New Englanders this afternoon, Larry French will be on the slab. Skipper McKechnie used up a flock of pitchers in yesterday's dual bill with the Bruins, but he has one or two available, including Bobby Brown, youthful right-hander, who so far this year has not been able to do much for th Boston cause.

PATERSON HONORS HONUS

The Pirates had a great tim yesterday in Paterson, N. J., where 7,000 fans came out to honor Honus Wagner. Honus was a member of the Paterson club in 1897 when Louisville, owned by the late Barney Dreyfuss, purchased his services. Yesterday was an open date on the Pittsburgh playing card and the folks of Paterson were glad of the chance to pay their respects to the famed Flying Dutchman.

Wagner was presented the key to the city and a gold pen and pencil. He entered into the spirit of the occasion in the ninth inning by hitting for one of the home players. Honus won the plaudits of the fans by cracking out a double. Southpaw Ralph Birkofer fanned 13 out of the Paterson boys and the Pirates won the game, 7 to 4.

CRACK RECRUITS 'FARMED'

Birkofer and Infielder Bill Brubaker were not on the Pittsburgh roster when the club reached Boston at midnight last night. The two promising boys were farmed out yesterday to Toronto, of the International League, but Boss Gibson thinks so much of the pair he refused to let them get further than one day from Pittsburgh. In other words, Ralph and Bill are under 18-hour options, so that they may be hastily recalled for any emergency.

Manager Dan Howley, of Toronto, was tickled over his success in landing the two big boys, although Daniel has been in quest of the pair since last winter. Many other teams sought Birkofer and Brubaker, but the Pittsburgh officials decided the Leafs had the best case, so the negotiations for the transaction were completed.

Two other former Pirates, Outfielder Dave Barbee and Pitcher Ervin Brame, are members of the Toronto club. Barbee is playing under a Pittsburgh option, while Brame is the outright property of Toronto. Barbee is off to a fine start; he is hitting better than .300.

BOOSTERS WIN LONG GAME

It remained for the Champion Charleston Senators and the Huntington Boosters to turn in the longest game played so far in the Mid-Atlantic League as the rival nines clashed at Huntington yesterday.

With two rival southpaws hurling excellent ball, the teams battled 16 innings yesterday, with the Boosters winning, 4 to 3. Tied at 2-all as the sixteenth opened, the Senators pushed what looked like the pay-off across in the first half of the frame, but the home team came back with a pair to win.

Springfield was outhit by the Johnstown Johnnies by two blows at Springfield, but the home club bunched its blows to win, 6 to 2.

Wheeling also was outslugged by Dayton, but more effective clouting enabled the Stogies to win, 7 to 6, at Dayton.

GOLF STARS VICTORS

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood displayed some of their championship golf on the Kenwood Country Club course here yesterday and defeated two local contenders in an 18-hole charity exhibition match, 5 and 4.

YANKEES STRIKE ROUGH SAILING IN WEST

CHAMPS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL WITH TRIBE

Early returns from the American League's Western sector indicate the New York Yankees aren't going to win the pennant again as easily as their success against Eastern rivals promised.

So far the Yanks have lost three out of five games in their brief tour and they even went so far yesterday as to drop temporarily out of first place as they lost the first half of a double bill to the Cleveland Indians, 7 to 6. They regained it with as little delay as possible with an 8-4 victory in the second game, but this record, compared with 11 victories in 14 starts against the East brings little encouragement to the World Champions.

FOUR HURLERS USED

Four Yankee flingers failed to hold Cleveland in check in the opener, and the Indians piled up 15 blows, including homers by Eddie Morgan and Bill Knickerbocker. Charley Ruffing yielded 12 blows in the nightcap, but the Yanks piled homers by Earl Combs and Tony Lazzeri on top of a four-run rally that drove Clint Brown to cover in the first inning.

Detroit's Tigers went 10 innings to defeat Washington, 10 to 9, in the first clash, but the Senators reversed the decision by hammering Lyn Rowe and Art Herring for 14 safeties and a 6-2 triumph, as Walter Stewart turned in a six-hit game.

The Chicago White Sox gained a temporary tie with the Yankees when they nosed out the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, but Henry Johnson silenced the bludgeons of the Pale Hose in the second clash, giving only five hits for a 3-2 triumph. The Philadelphia-St. Louis twin bill was rained out after one inning.

GIANTS WIN PAIR

In contrast to most of the other games, the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds provided the features of the National League program with a pair of brilliantly pitched games. The Giants won them both, 1-0 and 5-0, but they hardly deserved the first victory. Bob Smith let the New Yorkers down with two hits, against five off Carl Hubbell, but one was a home run by Sam Leslie. Hal Schumacher gave the Reds only two blows in the second game and won without much trouble.

The St. Louis Cardinals, again paced by Pepper Martin, put on the day's best slugfest against Brooklyn to win the first game 12-5. They collected 17 hits, including a homer, a double and two singles by Martin. Owen Carroll again appeared to be a good influence on Brooklyn in the second game and they made six hits off their old friend, Dazzy Vance, and his successor, Bill Hallahan, good for a 4-2 victory.

The Chicago Cubs shot up from seventh place to third as they took two games from the Boston Braves, 11-2 anw 5-2.

Exciting moment as Broker's Tip, outsider, nosed out Head Play, one of the favorites, to win the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs on Saturday. Jockey Fisher, on Head Play (No. 9), is seen in closeup with hand extended. He claimed interference by Jockey Meade, on the winner, and lashed out at him. His claim of a riding foul was disallowed by the stewards. Panorama picture above shows distance separating the first six horses in the field of 13 at the finish. Ladysman, favorite, finished fourth. SECOND LINKS CLINIC TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

Pete O'Hara, former Western Pennsylvania open champion, and professional at the Westmoreland Country Club, will hold his second golf clinic of the season at the Guyasuta Golf Club, Aspinwall, this evening at 8 o'clock, with a demonstration of short iron shots.

Last Monday O'Hara confined his 30-minute clinic to tee shots and long irons.

O'Hara is going to devote time this evening to answering questions on the grip, stance, and swing. O'Hara will hold a clinic each Monday for four weeks. Later, another well known professional will give a series of talks.

Competitive golf will be offered this week with intercollegiate matches and the opening duels in the women's team warfare. The women of Section I and II will swing into action Wednesday. Section I starts operations at Stanton Heights and Section II opens its season at Longue Vue.

The addition of Westmoreland Country Club women's team will act as a stimulant for Section I. The team, captained by Mrs. Friedman, played great golf to lead Section II last season.

The departure of Westmoreland from Section II finds the teams of South Hills and Highland coming into the circuit.

STRAY PIGEON HELD

A pigeon bearing the number AU33SC8889, which yesterday fluttered into her kitchen, is being cared for by Mrs. S. Bloomfield, 343 McKee Place, until claimed by its owner.

SHEA BATTLES WILSON HERE

stopped him they said it was too bad, he had been rushed too fast and was through. Whe the doctors said his heart was bad and advised a rest it looked like curtains, but here he is, fighting "on top" against the big names of his class.

SECOND SHOWING FOR SHEA

It has been three years since Shea made his only other appearance here, against that rugged trial horse, Steve Smith. Whether or not he has gone back is a question. He's still in demand for big bouts around the country. If Wilson can take him into camp, it will be another step forward for little Jackie, the pride and joy of his manager, Jess Miller.

There are those who don't like fast-stepping, light-hitting boxers of Wilson's type, but there is no gainsaying the youngster's record of achievement. If you fight the good ones and beat them by whatever means at your command, that's that, and Jackie has been winning. He's always been trying, always been learning, and, if he never gets any farther than he has right now, he'll have gone a long distance on what he had with which to start. He deserves a lot of credit.

Lou Jallos, Greek lightweight, of Cleveland, meets Louie Severo, of Meadville, in the eight-round semi-final tonight. Nat Litfin is in with Andy Kosel for the second bout, and Joey Zelano meets Gene Panos again in the six-round opener.

Between Rounds

Max Waxman, who has matched his Vince Dundee with Frankie Goosby at Greenlee Field, June 1, has two young heavyweights he wants to break in here. They are Carl Hyde and Jack Poliseo, both of New Jersey. One of them may meet Sunny Jim McVey on the Dundee-Goosby card.

Frankie Wallace, Cleveland featherweight, who meets Georgie Riley again in the main event on the card of three 10-rounders at the Arena, on the Friday night, is one of the cleverest little men to show here in recent years. His work is polished at all times and in his first meeting with Riley, which he won by a technical knockout when he cut one of Georgie's eyes, demonstrated that he also packs a punch. The Alabama Kid meets Joe Ruggazzoni and Johnny Datto boxes Petey Sarron in the other 10-rounders.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—Say, nothing seems to bother that Pittsburgh club. You know, when the experts predict you will win the flag, it is just like getting the gypsy curse. But the Pirates are like the old kitchen kettie—they just keep singing along, and maybe they don't make the other clubs boil.

Nick Altrock

It's got so now the Pittsburghs think they're in a losing streak if they split a double-header. Even if I had three feet of whiskers I would not pose as a prophet, but I still think the Pirate club will nab the old cheesecloth. But don't take my guess too serious, as I lost my shirt and so much underwear on the Kentucky Derby Saturday I have signed an application blank to be a nudist.

But name me the club that is going to beat 'em, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and I will mail you a horse laugh direct.

Bantamweight—Frank Salek and John Giachetti.
Lightweight — Clyde Porreca, William Eley, Paul Bailey and Joe Brody.
Middleweight—Al Quaill and Joe Vergosky.
Light-heavyweight — Henry Klena and Woodrow White.
Heavyweight—Buck Makarum and Dutch Weir.

YANKS SWEEP CUP SERIES

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—(AP.)—The United States Davis Cup tennis team scored a clean sweep of its first round series with Mexico, winning the last two singles matches yesterday.

Wilmer Allison, Austin (Tex.) star, who captains the American squad, defeated Eduardo Mestre, 6-0, 9-7, 6-2, and Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, conquered Dr. Ricardo Tapia, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-1, in the only really close match of the series.

Previously the United States had won the first two singles matches Friday and the doubles Saturday, thus clinching the series regardless of the outcome of yesterday's matches.

Davis Cup Results

HOLLAND VICTOR

THE HAGUE, May 8.—(AP.)—Holland eliminated Poland from further Davis cup tennis competition yesterday when Hans Timmer defeated I. Tloczinski, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Timmer's victory made the count three triumphs for Holland against one for Poland, clinching the series.

EGYPT ELIMINATED

WEISBADEN, May 8.—Germany scored a clean sweep of its Davis cup tennis series with Egypt by capturing the last two singles matches yesterday. Gottfried von Cramm defeated Bogdadly, 6-2, 6-2, while E. Nourney conquered Wahid, 8-7, 8-6, 6-2, 9-7.

IRISH, DANES SPLIT

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—(AP.)—Ireland and Denmark split even in the first two singles matches of their Davis cup tennis contest yesterday. G. Lyttleton Rogers, giant Irishman, defeated E. Ulrich, 8-6, 6-3, 6-2, but Jacobsen squared the count by defeating T. E. Vegh, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-3.

AUSTRIA LEADS

BRUSSELS, May 8. — (AP.) — Frantz Matejka defeated Lacroix, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 to give Austria a 2-0 lead over Belgium in their Davis cup tennis contest here yesterday.

Race Driver Hurt In Cincinnati Event

CINCINNATI, May 8.—(AP.)—Indianapolis drivers won most of the honors yesterday as the Cincinnati - Hamilton Automobile Speedway opened. Jack Barnes, of Indianapolis, was injured painfully in one of three accidents.

HEAD PLAY MAY GET REVENGE

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Thoroughbred heroes of one of the greatest 3-year-old duels in American turf history, Broker's Tip and Head Play were pointed today for the renewal of a rivalry that has gripped the racing world with fresh melodrama and bitter arguments.

They waged the Dempsey-Firpo battle of the turf, aided by their jockeys Saturday in the fifty-ninth Kentucky Derby, with Broker's Tip triumphant by two inches of nose in a stretch drive that has had no superior for thrills since mighty Man O' War barely beat John P. Grier in the historic finish to the 1920 Dwyer.

ENTERED IN PREAKNESS

They are entered this Saturday in the Preakness at Pimlico, along with a half dozen other survivors of the battle of Churchill Downs, and Head Play may be favored to turn the tables on the stout colt that upset Derby favorites, in his first winning race, and added to the record-breaking achievements of Col. Edward Riley Bradley, king of Kentucky horsemen.

No matter what else happens, however, to these two game colts in the chase for 1933 3-year-old supremacy, their struggle in the most romantic of American horse-racing classics will remain a vivid chapter in turf annals.

For the last quarter-mile, with all rivals beaten off in the first mile, Head Play and Jockey Herb Fisher struggled head to head with Broker's Tip and Don Meade in a terrific finish. Fisher charged that Meade pulled Head Play's saddle cloth and otherwise interfered with him. Meade countercharged that Fisher struck him twice with his whip. Fisher, tearfully raging, carried his protest to the judges, who turned him down. He carried his fight with Meade into the dressing quarters with his fists.

HEAD PLAY FAILS

Head Play, by the margin of a nose, failed to complete one of the most dramatic stories of horse-racing. Bought for $500 as a yearling by Willie Crump, a former jockey, and raced under Mrs. Crump's colors, Head Play was sold 24 hours before the Derby for $30,000 to Mrs. Silas B. Mason, of New York and Kentucky. Wife of a prominent contractor, Mrs. Mason had her whim gratified and her colors in the Derby for the first time, with an outstanding favorite, only to see the blue ribbon slip from her grasp by the narrowest of margins at the very end.

Winter books "cleaned up" on the Derby when W. R. Coe's Ladysman, 2-year-old champion, which went to the post a 7-to-5 favorite with a stable-mate, Pomponious, found the distance too tough. They finished fourth and fifth, respectively.

Bucs and Braves Book Dual Bill Here

The first doubleheader of the current baseball season will be staged at Forbes Field Saturday of next week by the Pirates and Boston Braves. Announcement to this effect was made today by Bill Benswanger, Pirate president.

The Boston management asked for the dual bill in order to eliminate a one-day jump from Chicago to Pittsburgh on May 29. They will come here Friday of next week for a two-day stay, so their request for the moving up of the single game has been complied with.

The latest move may be beneficial to the Pirates, who are scheduled for a doubleheader at Cincinnati, Sunday, May 28, and at the home grounds two days later, which will be Memorial Day. The Cubs will be in town for the holiday festivities. It is likely the Buccos will rest on the canceled date, May 29.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

After saying that the correct procedure on the putting green is to decide upon the line and then to concentrate solely upon hitting the ball along that line, it may be helpful to point out a few details of method which will make it easier to swing the club through in this way. As I have often written, to arrange the stance and position too carefully interferes with the freedom of movement which is so necessary to smooth stroking of the ball. Nevertheless, it will pay to arrange certain details correctly.

In the first place, while it is better to stand fairly erect without crouching, one must be careful not to crowd the ball too closely. I am not prepared to say that there is no virtue at all in having the eyes directly above the ball, but I know that more important than anything else is the accomplishment of a smooth, controlled swing. Whenever the player crowds the ball, he makes it impossible for his hands and arms to pass freely back and forth, and necessarily interrupts the smoothness of his stroke. He must be far enough from the ball to allow his backswing plenty of room without traveling outside of the projected line of his putt.

Bobby Jones

KEEP BALL FORWARD

The second important thing is to keep the ball up forward at address so that it can be swept along by a stroke directed along the selected line. As the ball moves back toward the right foot, the stroke becomes more of a hit or jab than a sweep, and therefore, loses both in ease and effectiveness. It is only when the ball is addressed approximately off the left toe that it is possible to really swing through it toward the hole.

The next thing is to make certain that the left arm will not lock and interrupt the smooth passage of the stroke through the ball. The left elbow should be kept away from the side of the body and pointed almost toward the hole, where the left arm will not be likely to tighten up as the swing moves forward. So many players, especially those who try to putt entirely with the wrists, hold the left arm immovable against the completion of the stroke. When this happens the club either jabs at the ball and stops, or, if the action of the wrist allows it to come through at all, it does so on a rapidly ascending arc.

POSITION OF PUTTER

The aim should be to keep the head of the putter relatively close to the ground both during the backswing and in the follow-through. I repeat that the correct putting stroke is a sweep and not a jab or a sharp hit. To accomplish this sort of a stroke it is plain that there must be some movement of the arms both backward and forward.

The putting stroke is in reality the correct golf stroke reduced in scale, especially in the sense that the pull is from the left side. As the stroke comes through the left arm simply must move forward. If it tightens against the stroke the putt cannot, except by accident, be truly struck.

The last important point concerns body movement. There is danger in trying consciously to produce a movement of the body in putting, but, by all means, do not attempt to hold the body immovable. Maintain a complete relaxation throughout which will encourage a quick and easy response to any suggestion of the necessity for movement. Obviously, as the putt becomes longer the hands and arms must have assistance if the stroke is still to be easy and free.

Again, remember! First examine the putt carefully and decide definitely and conclusively the line on which you want to start the ball. Then think of nothing but hitting the ball along that line.

BEADLING WINS SOCCER TEST

The Beadling Soccer Club qualified to meet the Castle Shannon McKnights in the final of the Western Pennsylvania Junior club, defeating Primrose, 3 to 2, in an extra-period game at Silent Brook field, South Park, yesterday afternoon.

Curry Soccer Club moved a notch nearer the Keystone League championship, beating the Castle Shannon Zoneys, 4 to 1 at South Park. Curry meets Cecil in the final game of the season this week, and a victory will carry with it the title.

In the German Sport League Millvale defeated the Sportverein eleven, 3 to 2 and Tarentum swamped Beltzhoover, 7 to 1.

LOCAL CADDIES ON STRIKE

About one-half the Churchill Valley corps of bag-toters, disgruntled when their demands for an increase of from 75 cents to $1 per 18-hole round was refused, walked out.

The places of those who "walked out" quickly were taken by newcomers, and play went on as usual. State police dispersed "regulars" who loitered around the course to berate the relief group.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

LOSERS MAKING RISKY EFFORTS TO RECOUP

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The inflation panic, with its rush to sell money short by going long of stocks, showed clear signs of entering its culmination phase last week. Despite all the churning, the composite averages closed the week only about a point up.

There were clear indications of trouble on Wednesday. Then, on Thursday a rescue party was staged, largely at the expense of die-hard shorts. On Friday an attempt to whip the market up completely failed, and after the last weak shorts had been driven to cover the averages settled back toward the low of the day.

On Saturday, there came the largest decline of several weeks. This was marked by the first heavy volume that has occurred on any break in a long while, the tape running 15 minutes late during the sell-off.

LOANS EXPAND

The technical position has been greatly weakened by short covering and the sucking in of a very weak long interest. On the one hand, we find few stocks now lending at a premium. On the other hand, brokers' loans have for two weeks expanded out of proportion with the rise in stocks.

What will happen next, no one can know. A ridiculous disparity has developed between the depreciation of the dollar and the appreciation in equities measured in dollars. But people have for the moment forgotten that stocks have risen chiefly to offset dollar depreciation. They have come to play for speculative profits, and are trying to recoup past losses rather than merely "protect" their money.

First they climbed up a tree to escape the bear of dollar depreciation. Now they are reaching for the fruit and getting farther and farther out on a limb.

Traders may be interested in the following surmises, based entirely on "market action." If the market should turn up again today, with increased volume, there would be some probability that the rise would be resumed. Or if there should be only a small decline, with volume lower, the probability would be that a little further rally would occur and bring the peak of the move soon.

REACTION POSSIBLE

A continued wide open break seems unlikely, barring news which at this writing is not in evidence. But it is surely too late to buy stocks merely to protect money, for stock prices have outrun any prospective depreciation of dollars. And last week's performance shows how hazardous speculative profits have now become.

Washington is at the parting of the ways. At the same time that we are told that anti-trust laws may not be enforced, a cabinet officer loudly complains that a cement trust is endangering the government's program of keeping prices up.

Wages are to be kept up or raised, and raw material be advanced, but profits are to be made.

International co-operation is talked of, while we hoard a large part of the world's gold, repudiate the gold clause in our bonds, and start a new currency war.

Business men acclaim a political dictatorship over their business, but ask us to buy equities in business; while the dictator expects us to buy bonds which would either not be good or would be a prior claim against the national income.

INDIANA CUTS GASOLINE

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—General reduction of normal tank wagon and service station prices of motor gasoline of all grades in amounts ranging from 2.2 to 3 cents a gallon was announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Edward G. Seubert, president of the concern, said the reduction was ordered "to iron out inequalities in adjoining markets which have developed out of local price conflicts and to level all prices on as normal and equitable a basis as possible."

New homes for old! Producto Brick Veneering, made from genuine kiln burned clay by the Pittsburgh Clay Products Company, Keenan Building, transforms frame or stucco houses overnight. Applied on galvanized metal laths with waterproof cement, it improves appearance, lengthens lifetime of the house, makes it cooler in summer and warmer in winter, reduces upkeep costs, increases market, resale and mortgage value, lessens fire hazards and reduces insurance, according to Thomas E. Wilson, president. Producto Brick Veneering approved by Pittsburgh's Department of Public Safety is 30 to 40 per cent cheaper than standard brick covering. House painting savings eventually pay for this lifetime veneering.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S 'REPORT' TO NATION

Reviews Steps to Bolster Nation's Trade, Credit

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's talk last night at the White House follows:

On a Sunday night a week week after my inauguration I used the radio to tell about the banking crisis and the measures we were taking to meet it. I think that in that way I made clear to the country various facts that might otherwise have been misunderstood and in general provided a means of understanding which did much to restore confidence.

Tonight, eight weeks later, I come for the second time to give you my report—in the same spirit and by the same means to tell you about what we have been doing and what we are planning to do.

Two months ago we were facing serious problems. The country was dying by inches. It was dying because trade and commerce had declined to dangerously low levels; prices for basic commodities were such as to destroy the value of the assets of national institutions such as banks, savings banks, insurance companies and others.

These institutions, because of their great needs, were foreclosing mortgages, calling loans, refusing credit. Thus there was actually in process of destruction the property of millions of people who had borrowed money on that property in terms of dollars which had had an entirely different value from the level of March, 1933. That situation in that crisis did not call for any complicated consideration of economic panaceas or fancy plans. We were faced by a condition and not a theory.

Deflation Cited

There were just two alternatives. The first was to allow the foreclosures to continue, credit to be withheld and money to go into hiding, and thus forcing liquidation and bankruptcy of banks, railroads and insurance companies and a recapitalization of all business and all property on a lower level.

This alternative meant a continuation of what is loosely called "deflation," the net result of which would have been extraordinary hardship on all property owners and, incidentally, extraordinary hardships on all persons working for wages through an increase in unemployment and a further reduction of the wage scale.

A prompt program applied as quickly as possible seemed to me not only justified but imperative to our national security. The Congress, and when I say Congress I mean the members of both political parties, fully understood this and gave me generous and intelligent support.

The members of Congress realized that the methods of normal times had to be replaced in the emergency by measures which were suited to the serious and pressing requirements of the moment. There was no actual surreder of power. Congress still retained its constitutional authority and no one has the slightest desire to change the balance of these powers.

The function of Congress is to decide what has to be done and to select the appropriate agency to carry out its will.

This policy it has strictly adhered to. The only thing that has been happening has been to designate the President as the agency to carry out certain of the purposes of the Congress. This was constitutional and in keeping with the past American tradition.

Points Out Plan

The legislation which has been passed or in the process of enactment can properly be considered as part of a well-grounded plan.

First, we are giving opportunity of employment to one-quarter of a million of the unemployed, especially the young men who have dependents, to go into the forestry and flood-prevention work. This is a big task, because it means feeding, clothing and caring for nearly twice as many men as we have in the regular Army itself.

In creating this civilian conservation corps we are killing two birds with one stone. We are clearly enhancing the value of our natural resources, and, second, we are relieving an appreciable amount of actual distress. This great group of men have entered upon their work on a purely voluntary basis; no military training is involved, and we are conserving not only our natural resources, but our human resources. One of the great values to this work is the fact that it is direct and requires the intervention of very little machinery.

Second, I have requested the Congress and have secured action upon a proposal to put the great properties owned by our government at Muscle Shoals to work after long years of wasteful inaction, and with this broad plan for the improvement of a vast area in the Tennessee Valley. It will add to the comfort and happiness of hundreds of thousands of people and the incident benefits will reach the entire nation.

Mortgage Relief

Next, the Congress is about to pass legislation that will greatly ease the mortgage distress among the farmers and the home owners of the nation, by providing for the easing of the burden of debt now bearing so heavily upon millions of our people.

Our next step in seeking immediate relief is a grant of half a billion dollars to help the states, counties and municipalities in their duty to care for those who need direct and immediate relief.

The Congress also passed legislation authorizing the sale of beer in such states as desired. This has already resulted in considerable re-employment and incidentally has provided much-needed tax revenue.

We are planning to ask the Congress for legislation to enable the government to undertake public works, thus stimulating directly and indirectly the employment of many others in well-considered projects.

Further legislation has been taken up which goes much more fundamentally into our economic problems. The farm relief bill seeks by the use of several methods, alone or together, to bring about an increased return to farmers for their major farm products, seeking at the same time to prevent in the days to come disastrous overproduction which so often in the past has kept farm commodity prices far below a reasonable return. This measure provides wide powers for emergencies. The extent of its use will depend entirely upon what the future has in store.

Plans for Workers

Well considered and conservative measures will likewise be proposed which will attempt to give to the industrial workers of the country a more fair wage return, prevent cut-throat competition and unduly long hours for labor, and at the same time to encourage each industry to prevent overproduction.

Our railroad bill falls into the same class because it seeks to provide and make certain definite planning by the railroads themselves, with the assistance of the government, to eliminate the duplication and waste that is now resulting in railroad receiverships and continuing operating deficits.

I am certain that the people of this country understand and approve the broad purposes behind these new governmental policies relating to agriculture and industry and transportation.

Today we have reason to believe that things are a little better than they were two months ago. Industry has picked up, railroads are carrying more freight, farm prices are better, but I am not going to indulge in issuing proclamations of over enthusiastic assurance.

We cannot bally-ho ourselves back to prosperity. I am going to be honest at all times with the people of the country.

I do not want the people of this country to take the foolish course of letting this improvement come back on another speculative wave. I do not want the people to believe that because of unjustified optimism we can resume the ruinous practice of increasing our crop output and our factory output in the hope that a kind providence will find buyers at high prices. Such a course may bring us immediate and false prosperity, but it will be the kind of prosperity that will lead us into another tailspin.

Cites Government's Role

It is wholly wrong to call the measures that we have taken government control of farming, control of industry, and control of transportation. It is rather a partnership between government and farming and industry and transportation, not partnership in profits, for the profits would still go to the citizens, but partnership in planning and partnership to see that the plans are carried out.

Let me illustrate with an example. Take the cotton goods industry. It is probably true that 90 per cent of the cotton manufacturers would agree to eliminate starvation wages, would agree stop long hours of employment, would agree to stop child labor, would agree to prevent an overproduction that would result in unsalable surpluses.

But, what good is such an agreement if the other 10 per cent of cotton manufacturers pay starvation wages, require long hours, employ children in their mills and turn out burdensome surpluses?

The unfair 10 per cent could produce goods so cheaply that the fair 90 per cent would be compelled to meet the unfair conditions. Here is where government comes in. Government ought to have the right and will have the right, after buying and planning for an industry, to prevent, with the assistance of the overwhelming majority of that industry, unfair practice and to enforce this agreement by the authority of government.

The so-called anti-trust laws were intended to prevent the creation of monopolies and to forbid unreasonable profits to those monopolies. That purpose of the anti-trust laws must be continued, but these laws were never intended to encourage the kind of unfair competition that results in long hours, starvation wages and overproduction.

The same principle applies to farm products and to transportation and every other field of organized private industry.

We are working toward a definite goal, which is to prevent the return of conditions which came very close to destroying what we call modern civilization. The actual accomplishment of our purpose cannot be attained in a day. Our policies are wholly within purposes for which our American constitutional government was established 150 years ago.

I know that the people of this country will understand this and will also understand the spirit in which we are undertaking this policy. I do not deny that we may make mistakes of procedure as we carry out the policy.

I have no expectation of making a hit every time I come to bat. What I seek is the highest possible batting average, not only for myself but for the team. Theodore Roosevelt once said to me:

"If I can be right 75 per cent of the time I shall come up to the fullest measure of my hopes."

Inflation Policy

Much has been said of late about federal finances and inflation, the gold standard, etc. Let me make the facts very simple and my policy very clear. In the first place, government credit and government currency are really one and the same thing.

Behind government bonds there is only a promise to pay. Behind government currency we have, in addition to the promise to pay, a reserve of gold and a small reserve of silver. In this connection it is worth while remembering that in the past the government has agreed to redeem nearly 30 billions of its debts and its currency in gold, and private corporations in this country have agreed to redeem another 60 or 70 billions of securities and mortgages in gold.

The government and private corporations were making these agreements when they knew full well that all of the gold in the United States amounted to only between three and four billions and that all of the gold in all of the world amounted to only about 11 billions.

If the holders of these promises to pay started in to demand gold, the first comers would get gold for a few days and they would amount to about one-twenty-fifth of the holders of the securities and the currency. The other 24 people out of 25, who did not happen to be at the top of the line, would be told politely that there was no more gold left.

We have decided to treat all 25 in the same way in the interest of justice and the exercise of the constitutional powers of this government. We have placed every one on the same basis in order that the general good may be preserved.

Nevertheless, gold, and to a partial extent silver, are perfectly good bases for currency and that is why I decided not to let any of the gold now in the country go out of it.

Peril in Gold Drain

A series of conditions arose three weeks ago which very readily might have meant, first, a drain on our gold by foreign countries, and, secondly, as a result of that, a flight of American capital, in the form of gold, out of our country.

It is not exaggerating the possibility to tell you that such an occurrence might well have taken from us the major part of our gold reserve and resulted in such a further weakening of our government and private credit as to bring on actual panic conditions and the complete stoppage of the wheels of industry.

The administration has the definite objective of raising commodity prices to such an extent that those who have borrowed money will, on the average, be able to repay that money in the same kind of dollar which they borrowed.

We do not seek to let them get such a cheap dollar that they will be able to pay back a great deal less than they borrowed.

In other words we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction. That is why powers are being given to the administration to provide, if necessary, for an enlargement of credit, in order to correct the existing wrong. Those powers will be used when, as, and if it may be necessary to accomplish the purpose.

Hand in hand with the domestic situation, which, of course, is our first concern, is the world situation, and I want to emphasize to you that the domestic situation is inevitably and deeply tied in with the conditions in all of the other nations of the world. In other words, we can get, in all probability, a fair measure of prosperity return in the United States, but it will not be permanent unless we get a return to prosperity all over the world.

In the conferences which we have held and are holding with the leaders of other nations, we are seeking four great objectives. First, a general reduction of armaments and through this the removal of the fear of invasion and armed attack, and, at the same time, a reduction in armament costs, in order to help in the balancing of government budgets and the reduction of taxation.

Secondly, a cutting down of the trade barriers, in order to restart the flow of exchange of crops and goods between nations.

Visitors Respond

Our foreign visitors these past three weeks have responded to these purposes in a very helpful way. All of the nations have suffered alike in this great depression. They have all reached the conclusion that each can best be helped by the common action of all.

It is in this spirit that our visitors have met with us and discussed our common problems. The international conference that lies before us must succeed. The future of the world demands it and we have each of us pledged ourselves to the best joint efforts to this end.

We are encouraged to believe that a wise and sensible beginning has been made. In the present spirit of mutual confidence and mutual encouragement we go forward.

BUSINESS

Steel Company Getting Ready for Trade Revival

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT made today that the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation is about to spend about $750,000 for the construction of new facilities for the production of tin plate at the Aliquippa works is particularly significant to general business since it represents confidence on the part of officials of this organization that a genuine revival is to be expected in the near future.

Demand for tin plate has been more active than for any other type of steel product during the depression period. Even under such circumstances, however, production during the past year has been over 50 per cent of capacity, for the tin plate producers as a whole, at only rare intervals.

It is quite probable, however, that tin plate production has been the only generally profitable branch of the steel industry during the past year. This has been due to the exceptional stability of prices and the relatively high level of sales.

* * *

Companies With Tin Facilities Helped

FOR MANY YEARS tin plate has shown a greater degree of stability than other steel products. The McKeesport Tin Plate Company has been able to show profits throughout the depression. The fact that a large share of the finishing mill facilities of National Steel are devoted to tin plate has been an important factor in making that organization the only major steel producer which has been able to show profits and to continue to pay dividends on capital stock during the slump. The ownership of production facilities in the Detroit district also has been a helpful factor for National.

Properly speaking, McKeesport Tin Plate is not a steel company since it does not have its own facilities for making semi-finished steel but buys raw material for its mills from other producers.

* * *

Demand for Product Continues Stable

TIN PLATE is principally used for the packing of foods. This has tended to keep demand relatively stable. Crops of fruits and vegetables must be canned or allowed to go to waste unless there are convenient markets for the fresh produce. Food consumption varies little between times of depression and prosperity. The number of foods packed in cans has been showing a steady increase for many years.

These factors, along with prospects for a general business recovery of major proportions within the next two years, make the outlook for the tin plate producers exceptionally favorable.

Forbes

New Highs for Year Scored; What's Next?

By B. C. FORBES

THE MOST important economic development, at least outside of Washington, is the very substantial advance in prices.

Mr. Forbes

This advance has carried average agricultural prices to a new peak for the year, has raised other raw materials 30 to 100 per cent; has carried stock quotations above the top reached last fall and has raised bonds (particularly second grades) very substantially.

NEXT IN importance, statistically, is the marked expansion in industrial and trade activity in many directions.

Retail buying is distinctly brisker; wholesales, their stocks abnormally depleted, are placing rush orders; many manufacturers consequently are adding to their working forces.

Automobile manufacturers are amazed at the deluge of orders now rushing in from dealers—who are making actual sales. Steel production has lately doubled. Leading makers of refrigerators have had to expand production enormously. The lumber industry reports an inrush of orders for immediate delivery.

A larger diversity of shares figured in the trading on the New York Stock Exchange one day last week than on any day since 1931. "Five million-share days" have returned. Transactions one day exceeded those during any upward movement since before the panic.

ONE QUESTION of 10 discussed is whether pronounced security movements or pronounced commodity movements exercise the greater influence. One Congress leader last week placed the number of stockholders in American corporations at 18,000,000—perhaps a too high figure. Of course, in addition to those who actually own securities, many other millions are affected when values shrink terrifically, such as insurance policyholders, savings bank depositors, members of building and loan associations, trust beneficiaries, etc.

Yet probably more throughout the country pay more attention to commodities than to security fluctuations. Our agricultural population outnumbers direct owners of stocks. And, all of us are more or less affected by violent upswings or downswings in agricultural prices and raw material prices.

Therefore, the following table showing the extent of the rebound in commodity and material prices since the low point of the current year is of very widespread interest:

Commodity	1933 Low	1933 High	Per cent Inc.
Wheat	52⅝	85⅜	62
Corn	38⅝	59¾	54
Rye	48⅝	73	50
Oats	25⅝	37½	48
Flour	3.45	5.15	49
Sugar (raw)	2.65	3.40	28
Butter	16½	22½	36
Lard	4.10	6.15	50
Pork	14.25	17.75	25
Beef	9.50	12.50	32
Copper	5	8¾	75
Zinc	2.60	3.85	48
Tin	21.75	36	66
Cotton	5.90	8.60	46
Silk	1.12½	1.70	51
Wool tops	.54	.72	33
Rubber	2.81	4.68	67
Silver	24½	37¾	52
Hides	4½	9	100

MANIFESTLY, deflation has been emphatically checked.

NO MORTAL can foretell.

This much, however, safely can be said: Many, especially in the financial world, who were terribly frightened by the unprecedented powers requested by President Roosevelt, are now more inclined to reason that he will not immediately proceed to exercise these powers to the extreme. They expect further inflation, yes—the rise in sterling and European gold currencies reached new heights on Saturday. But, many are now less apprehensive that inflation will get absolutely beyond control.

EVERYBODY is eagerly waiting to see how ultimate consumers will respond, to see how much retail sales increase.

STOCKS CLIMB ON ROOSEVELT ADDRESS

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Reacting favorably to the address of President Roosevelt, and denial of rumors that France would leave the gold standard, financial markets resumed their advance today.

Trading was quieter in shares, but many issues advanced 1 to more than 3 points, cancelling much of Saturday's loss. Cotton reacted rather substantially, then recovered. Wheat showed a good undertone, moving narrowly.

Rumors late last week, since denied, that France and Holland might leave gold, undoubtedly contributed to Saturday's flurry of profit-taking. Traders argued that a decline in francs and guilders in terms of dollars would have an adverse effect upon prices of commodities in this country such as wheat and cotton, and might tend to check the advancing markets. Some usually well-informed international banking quarters here, however, asserted that England would undoubtedly co-operate with France to keep that country on gold, at least until after the economic conference.

Continued good reports from the steel industry helped the market. The magazine Steel said operations should reach or exceed 40 per cent of capacity this week. At that level, Wall street estimated that the industry might come out of the red for the first time in a long time. How long that rate could be maintained, however, with the approach of summer, was regarded as a matter of conjecture.

President Roosevelt's remarks regarding the new attitude toward the anti-trust laws, which would prevent small minorities within industries from unsettling the entire group by cut-throat price cutting, were interpreted favorably. Oil quarters, particularly, were encouraged.

Santa Fe, reporting last week's movement of freight, showed a recession of nearly 2,000 cars from the previous week, but was about 400 cars over the like week of last year.

GMO SALES UP IN APRIL

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—General Motors Corporation today reported that it had sold 71,599 cars and trucks to consumers in the United States during April as compared with 47,436 in March and 81,573 in April, 1932.

Sales to American dealers last month totaled 74,242 units against 45,098 in March and 69,029 a year ago.

Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada, together with overseas shipments, were 86,967 cars as compared with 58,018 in the previous month and 78,359 in April, 1932.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

United Gas Corporation and subsidiaries for 1932, after interest charges, taxes and other deductions, report net income of $5,566,039, compared with $8,270,298 in the previous year. Total operating revenues of the corporation for the year amounted to $23,091,451, against $25,005,303 in 1931. Net revenues from operations were $12,143,878 as compared with $11,206,449.

St. Regis Paper Company reports for 1932 net loss of $1,443,697 after all charges except $368,273 loss on sale of investments which was charged to surplus. In 1931 the company had net income of $738,288 exclusive of $177,515 profit on sale of securities, equal after preferred dividends to 10 cents a share on the common stock.

Pullman Company reports March net loss of $717,109 compared with net loss of $431,234 in the same month of 1932. Gross earnings totaled $2,643,045 against $3,805,593 a year ago. For the first quarter of 1933 gross earnings were $8,635,337 compared with $12,375,306 last year, and net loss for the quarter was $1,136,220 against loss of $438,709 in 1932.

Celotex Company, now in receivership, reports for the year ended October 31, 1932, consolidated net loss of $1,382,727, after depreciation, interest, foreign exchange loss, provision for inventory write-down plant disposal loss and other charges. This compares with net loss of $130,599 in the previous year.

United Carbon Company reports for the March quarter profit of $128,970 before federal taxes compared with $61,677 in the 1932 first quarter.

General Baking Company for 13 weeks ended April 1, reports net profit of $421,643, equivalent to 15 cents a share on the outstanding common stock. This compares with net profit of $1,014,614, or 53 cents a share, for the 12 weeks ended March 19, last year.

Warner-Quinlan Company had a 1932 net loss of $2,366,583 after all charges in 1931 the company had a net loss of $711,524.

Ohio Oil Company net loss in the March quarter was $1,418,245 after taxes, depreciation, depletion, etc., against net income of $1,656,106 in the March, 1932, quarter.

International Printing Ink Corporation and subsidiaries, March quarter loss was $109,509 after charges, adjustments, etc., against net profit of $42,162 in the first quarter 1932.

HALT IN PRICE DROP HELPS OUTLOOK

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Business and the speculative markets responded further last week to the exhilarating effects of the new leadership.

Mr. Rukeyser

The removal of the dampening influence of continuous down sliding of prices released numerous impulses to proceed normally. The tendency to view the rise critically is in part based on the difficulty of distinguishing between the elements in the upturn ascribable to actual shortages and the elements which are clearly due to the changing value of the dollar.

The administration itself is frankly bullish, making no secret of its desire to achieve a higher price level. This attitude naturally recalls former presidents' adventures in psychological leadership. Yet the points of different appear to me to be more significant than the points of similarity.

PSYCHOLOGY NOT ENOUGH

In the first place, as early as November, 1929, at the White House conferences, when Mr. Hoover turned loose the cheering squads, security and commodity prices, though partially deflated after the panic, were inordinately high compared with the price levels prevailing when Mr. Roosevelt assumed the presidency.

Many non-political observers were of the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt started to build on firm ground. Secondly, Mr. Hoover overemphasized the psychological factor, and seemed to think more hopeful thinking in itself would reverse economic forces.

The test of the present economic rehabilitation program will be in the ability of the administration and its followers in private business to launch actual job-creating projects to redeem substantial numbers of the unemployed from idleness.

To the extent that this is accomplished and buttressed by effective farm relief, actual consumption will increase, and the foundations of recovery will be made of granite.

Thus far, the recovery is to a large extent anticipatory. Merchants, manufacturers and speculators are discounting the time when actual consumption will substantially increase. The present trade improvement consists mainly of forward buying by venturesome trade factors who wanted to protect themselves against further rises in commodities.

FUNDS' FLOW REVERSED

Furthermore, there have been some preliminary signs of a disposition to bring up inventories to more normal levels, and, with the threat of inflation, there has been a reversal of the mad rush toward liquidity and a return flow of funds into property, including commodities and equities.

The permanenec of the improvement will depend on the extent to which larger inventories and higher rate of production are absorbed in actual consumption. The very improvement in sentiment will itself promote consumption in timid homes which were not exerting their buying power to the hilt.

If the rise in the prices of staple agricultural commodities is held, the net income of farmers will have been significantly bolstered. Buying from such sources will itself provide additional opportunities for employment.

But unless the lag between the price rise and opportunities for employment is artificially shortened by an immense program of public spending, the recovery is likely to lack the power to follow through.

Accordingly, at this stage it is important for the administration to push through tangible job giving projects, such as public works, semi-public activities, such as slum removal and grants in aid to private industries. Business should further be encouraged to go forward by revision of the anti-trust laws, and by relaxation of burdensome taxes and substitution of comparatively painless manufacturers' sales taxes.

HOLLAND FEARS GOLD DRAIN

AMSTERDAM, Holland, May 8.—(AP.)—There is still a feeling of uneasiness here regarding the currency situation, although the immediate danger of Holland's abandoning the gold standard seems cleared away.

Despite the statemetn of President L. J. A. Trip, of the Bank of the Netherlands, Saturday that the bank would continue to deliver gold, the demand for the yellow metal sharply increased today and the value of the 10-guilders gold coin has risen.

The demand was so heavy that the Netherlands bank is considering issuing a statement protesting against gold hoarding. It is stated in well-informed circles, however, that as long as the Paris exchange is quoting above the gold export point, the Netherlands bank is will be obliged to export gold to France. This is weakening the bank's position.

Meanwhile the Bank of the Netherlands was adhering to the policy of placing gold at the disposal of regular arbitrage transactions.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Raw sugar was quiet today. Futures opened unchanged to 3 points lower and showed further losses under increased liquidation and selling by commission houses promoted by the inactivity in the spot market. The market at midday was about 2 to 3 points net lower.

A good withdrawal demand was reported for refined sugar, but otherwise the market was quiet and prices were unchanged at 4.60c for fine granulated. Second hands were available at around 4.35c.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

The next day was Saturday, the day that Sharlie liked best of all the days in the week. To begin with, it meant only a half day of work. At noon she could close her typewriter under the lid of her desk, get her pay envelope and feel rich and leisured, with a full purse and no work ahead of her until Monday morning.

There were certain things that she had planned for this particular Saturday after Thanksgiving. She was going to buy a new pair of white spats and a white cotton gardenia for her coat, get a new kind of lipstick that was really indelible, and have her nails manicured in the beauty shop on the first floor of the building.

Then if Mr. Collins telephoned by any chance to ask her to go driving with him on Sunday she would be at her best for him, and she felt very certain that he would call her up and try to see her before the week-end was over.

At 12 o'clock, just as she was gathering up her handbag and gloves, the door of his office opened and he came across the room to her.

"I'll meet you anywhere you say at 4 o'clock," he said in a quick, matter-of-fact way, almost as if he were asking her to take down some dictation for him.

"Lobby of the Stoneham Hotel," Sharlie answered, thinking as she spoke that she would have plenty of time to do her shopping and get her manicure before 4 o'clock.

FEELS DEPRESSED

Down on the first floor of the building girls were meeting their "boy friends" for this best afternoon of all the week. Slim high heels clicked across the lobby of the building beside flat rubber-heeled shoes. Gay feminine eyes under little silk turbans and velvet berets looked up into masculine eyes under flat felt hat brims, the scent of powder and lipstick and perfume mingled with the smell of cigarets and tweed overcoats.

It seemed to Sharlie, as she stepped into the chill of the street, that every girl in town, with the exception of herself, had a sweetheart her own age. Someone to lunch with and dance with, to talk with and laugh with, to be young and silly and happy with—someone to be honestly and passionately in love with, even if he were poor as Job's turkey!

The feeling of depression that had swept over Sharlie on the night when she and Mr. Collins had had dinner at the Riverview Inn came over her again. It stayed with her, that feeling, all afternoon as she shopped and sat at the manicure's table in the beauty shop. It was still with her when she walked into the lobby of The Stoneham at 4 o'clock.

There was a barber shop just off the lobby, and as she stepped into the hotel the door of the shop opened and Mr. Collins came out. He had just had a shave evidently, for Sharlie never had seen him look younger or pinker or smoother. There was hardly a line in his face and he grinned like a boy at the sight of her.

IN HIS HONOR

"Tea?" he asked, nodding in the direction of the Palm Room, where there was always music at this time of the afternoon.

"Coffee," said Sharlie. "I've been so busy getting some new spats and a manicure that I haven't had any lunch. Could I have a whole pot of coffee and a very thick sandwich, please?"

It was odd, but she felt much more comfortable with him today than she ever had before.

"Are these new spats in my honor?" he asked, looking down at the snowy whiteness of them.

Sharlie nodded. "And this is your honor, too," she answered, showing him the little cotton gardenia pinned on the lapel of her coat. "And these gloves, too. I do think pure white touches add a lot to anybody's clothes." She spread out her small hands in their new white chamois gloves as they sat down at a table across the floor from the orchestra. "I'm all dressed up for you. I hope you like me."

"I'm crazy about you." He grinned at her again, helping her out of her coat. A waiter came up and he ordered two pots of coffee and an order of assorted sandwiches.

"Cut the bread thick," he said to the waiter. "Have them put plenty of butter on it."

No one who was penniless could order a waiter around with that off-hand air, thought Sharlie, watching him from her side of the table. He wouldn't look so untroubled if he had just lost his money, either, would he? If he had failed in business? Weren't failures always apologetic and timid, a little like her father, she asked herself.

The coffee came with the sandwiches. Sharlie ate and drank with appetite while he sat back in his chair watching her through the clouds of his cigar-smoke. The cigar, she saw, was the special and expensive kind that he had always smoked.

The orchestra played "Marcheta" very softly, the light outside the tall windows of the room faded and the pink-shaded wall lights came on like flowers bursting into sudden bloom.

"It's lovely and peaceful here, isn't it?" Sharlie asked dreamily, soothed and pleased by the sight and feel of luxury, as she always was. She took a cigaret from her handbag and before she could begin to look for matches Mr. Collins had his silver lighter aflame and ready for it.

Then he leaned forward, both arms on the table. "Sharlie, have you been kidding me about your liking for me?" he asked in a low tone. "Remember, on Thanksgiving afternoon you told me you could have a swell time with me anywhere? Did you mean that?"

COLLINS PROPOSES

Almost without thinking, she nodded her head. The orchestra had swung out of "Marcheta" into the quick, peppy music of "Singing In the Rain" and her feet were beginning to tap on the floor as they always did when she wanted to dance. She wished that Mr. Collins hadn't picked just this minute to talk solemnly and seriously to her—this minute when the best orchestra in town was playing such divine dance music.

"Sharlie." His hand closed over hers that lay on the table-cloth between them, and at his touch Sharlie stopped tapping the floor with her toes and heels and turned her eyes from the orchestra to his eyes. "Sharlie, you don't know whether I'm in love with you or not, do you?—You wonder about it, don't you?"

"Yes." As she spoke the thought crossed her mind that she did not wonder about him and his liking for her half so much as she had months ago—or even weeks ago. The "crush"—an infatuation—was like a disease. It made you feverish and uncomfortable for a time, and then it ran its course and it was gone—like measles.

"Do you think you'd like to be married to me?"

For a moment Sharlie couldn't believe that he actually had proposed to her. As Dodie said, he was a "wary bird," and hard to catch. Sharlie had never been certain that he ever would ask her to marry him—and she certainly had not expected the proposal to come as soon as this!

TO GO AWAY

"Why—I don't know what to say," she answered him unsteadily. The kind of thoughts that her grandmother would have called "most unworthy thoughts" went through her head as she sat looking at him . . . Suppose Edna was right and he really was penniless? Wouldn't it be dreadful to marry a man old enough to be your father and have to drudge and scimp and save for him just as if he were some young and handsome man with whom you could honestly be in love?

If you were going to be poor, it was better to be poor with a gay young husband, the kind of young fellow who would be dancing to "Singin' In the Rain" right now instead of sitting quietly at a table, smoking a large expensive cigar and looking middle-aged in a very well-groomed, well-massaged, smooth-shaven way?

"Before you answer me, I want to tell you a thing or two," Mr. Collins went on, pressing her fingers in his. "The Collins Company is closing its doors at the first of the year, and I'm expecting to leave this town for good."

"For good," Sharlie repeated stupidly. Edna was right then, she was thinking. "Where are you going, Mr. Collins?" She wondered, saying his name, if she would ever be able to call him anything but "Mr. Collins" if she married him.

"Oh, I've some property down in the Salt River Valley, near Phoenix—very valuable land now that the Boulder Dam is being built, Sharlie," he said, and she nodded vaguely, not understanding why the Boulder Dam should make land valuable anywhere. "I've been planning to go down there and go into the real estate and insurance business."

After that he seemed to be waiting for her answer. His shrewd blue eyes studied her face, and she looked helplessly back at him asking herself what she ought to say.

MAGNETIC EFFECT OF CURRENT (Science)

Insulated wire is coiled into a circular ring (G) connected by terminals (+ and −) to a source of direct current. A sheet of paper is placed horizontally through the center of the ring and covered with iron filings. The filing will assume positions showing the pattern characteristic of a magnetic field. The coil under current acts as a magnet; the lines of force are leaving at the north—and entering at the south pole. A conductor with several loops is called a solenoid or electromagnet. POURING THE INGOTS

The molten steel of the open hearth furnace, or Bessemer converter, poured into the ladle, is carried by a crane over a series of ingot-moulds set on cars. A valve at the bottom of the ladle is opened and the moulds filled. (Chemistry.)

PROCLAMATION OF THE COMMUNE IN FRANCE IN 1871

In the middle of the Franco-Prussian War (1870-1871) (see issue of March 24, 1933), so disastrous to France under Emperor Napoleon III, internal unrest arose among the French political parties. On March 26, 1871, the radicals proclaimed Communism, but the new government, composed mainly of Monarchists and Republicans, soon repressed the insurrection, thus clearing the way for the coming of the third French Republic. INGOTS, THE FIRST STEEL PRODUCT

After the steel in the mould has solidified, the mould is removed by lifting it upward by a specially equipped crane, leaving the ingot—a tapered block—on the car. Left: Filled moulds; right: stripped ingots. A prerequisite to good finished material is a perfect ingot free from cairties (pipe), blow-holes and segregation of impurities, hence great care and up-to-date equipment are most important.

PLACING THE INGOT IN THE "SOAKING PIT"

The "soaking pits" are underground furnaces heated by the regenerative principle and having their doors at the top. They serve to reheat the ingots (6-8 hours), giving them an even temperature through and through (about 2000° F.) suitable for the next operation of mechanical shaping: rolling or forging.

Bugs Baer

Beauty and Diplomacy

That's a good idea. We are tired of looking at ancient wise men with pompadours hanging the wrong way from their chins.

When the good looking Europeans come over The Bug will balance the scales of international pulchritude by going to Korea for the chilblain season.

If you must be handsome to be important then The Bug will lather his face with camphor to keep the moths away.

We would like to get into the diplomatic service in a small, unconscious way. We might make the grade with the aid of five cents' worth of nose putty and a vote of confidence from the government. It would cost nothing to bend our eyebrows in an affable direction and to curtail our ears to the dimensions of crown fenders.

When asked some vital question we could give the enemy our Grecian profile and thus stave off several wars and six invitations for the next dance.

From now on, all the diplomats will do nothing but pose. A graceful gesture, a flirt of the hand or a patrician walk will give us a greater understanding of the world problems that now confront us on all sides and also diagonally.

When we get to the far-flung corners of the earth we will fling them back again.

Beauty is only skin deep and lifted faces seek their own level. We wish to be known as the prince charming of continental diplomacy. And we will certainly attain that lofty eminence if they make it a masquerade affair.

In the meantime we will steam the face in the Monday wash boiler while waiting for the appointment and the fan mail to arrive.

Speed Up Public Works!

A Bold Program of Construction by the Federal Government Will Stimulate Trade.

In the frontal attack on the depression which the Roosevelt administration has been launching, acceleration of public works will constitute a key maneuver.

The President recognizes the liberating value of a well conceived program of job-giving public construction.

Accordingly, it is to be hoped that he will ignore the counsel of timidity which is being urged.

It has been reported that, though his advisers all recognize the need of speeding up public works, some are urging that the program be made not too comprehensive.

Such negative advice is distinctly mischievous.

If the government spending is too small to contribute to a reversal of the deflationary trends, then it is ill-advised and useless.

Mere lip service to the economists' recommendation is not enough. The question of how large a program is like asking how much water should be used to put out a fire. Those responsible cannot afford to use less water than will actually extinguish the fire.

Launched simultaneously with farm relief and the formulation of a new monetary policy, public works expansion can be doubly useful, especially if linked up with a correlated plan for goverment financing of semi-public projects, such as slum removal, and public stimulus to activities on the part of private industry.

A State Flower at Last

It Is Too Bad an Emblem Was Chosen That Had Been Pre-Empted by Connecticut.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has signed a bill making the mountain laurel the official emblem.

The only objection to this is that Connecticut had already pre-empted the mountain laurel as its flower.

As if to make up for the many years of indecision the Legislature at its recent session passed bills adopting two state flowers, the mountain laurel and wild honeysuckle, and left it to Gov. Pinchot to choose between them or veto both. He said he would refer the question to Mrs. Pinchot.

Pennsylvania has had a state bird, the ruffed grouse, and a state tree, the hemlock, but for decades had been unable to reach a choice on the question of a floral emblem.

In the meanwhile every other state has adopted a flower, with the result that the number left to Pennsylvania from which to select an original emblem had become fewer and fewer.

A women's club in Pittsburgh once proposed that the trailing arbutus be chosen as our state flower. But that became Massachusetts' flower.

About 10 years ago Pittsburgh school children voted in favor of the blossom of the tulip tree, choosing it not only for its beauty but also because the leaf of the tree is shaped somewhat like a keystone. But while we were pondering the matter Indiana adopted the tulip tree blossom.

When Judge M. A. Musmanno, of the County Court, was in the Legislature, he proposed that a commission be appointed to recommend a state flower. It was his idea to have a body of educators, botanists and public men study Pennsylvania's floral beauty and tell the people something about it. The plan, the best that has ever been proposed, came to nothing.

It is too bad that Connecticut has first claim on it. But didn't Connecticut once claim Pennsylvania territory as its own, and actually send an army into the colony and shed blood in an effort to enforce the claim?

Safety in Fumigation

Director McFarland Properly Demands That Dangerous Gases Shall Not Be Used Carelessly.

Director W. W. McFarland, of the Department of Public Health, will have the support of the people in his effort to assure safety in the fumigation of houses.

An inspector reported recently that he found a house being fumigated with hydrocyanic gas, one of the most deadly of gases. Two children were playing at the door, and there was no watchman on duty.

Not long ago a child was killed by hydrocyanic gas in Swissvale. The deaths of two women in a North Side apartment from this cause are also in the record.

Dr. McFarland threatens to institute court action, if necessary, to compel fumigating companies to use less dangerous gases and to exercise due care.

Sins of Omission

The Legislature Can Offer No Defense for Failing to Ratify the Child Labor Amendment.

The evils of child labor have been called to public attention in Pennsylvania during the last few weeks as never before.

The Governor's wife has paraded in the picket line of children strikers at a sweatshop in the eastern end of the state, where boys and girls are protesting against long hours and starvation wages.

The Pittsburgh Central Labor Union has adopted a ringing denunciation of sweatshops, and other bodies throughout the state have taken similar action.

And yet, in the face of all this, the Pennsylvania Legislature has adjourned without ratifying the child labor amendment to the United States Constitution or passing the legislation needed for the protection of Pennsylvania children from exploiters.

No defense can be offered for this heartless indifference.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 8.—Diary of a modern Pepys: To breakfast, winding up at another table with a Titian trull. And leaving me to settle the chit. So home in duty until Billy Seeman called with a crop of tayles from London.

With my wife to a symphony, but instead of fine music lines ran through my head. In especial: "This is all we ever say: Ego, mei, mihi me." So to Ann Kirkpatricks for a spot of tea and Don Marquis and his lady there. And we talked of Atlanta, Keats Speed, Phil Simms and Wilson Burke.

Dinner at the T. J. Whites, where came the Bainbridge Colbys, the Larry Harrises, Baroness Von Horne and E. D. Coblentz. And Colby, his counsellor so long, related with high charm rollicking tayles of Mark Twain. Then to the golden wedding reception at the Charles M. Schwabs and home late.

In Hollywood recently Gilbert Miller attended a huddle at which Joe Swerling remarked, in speaking of John Galsworthy, he had purchased the author's "Forsythe Saga." Whereup Eddie Buzzell, who up until that time had said practically nothing, yawned and observed: "As for me, give me a good 5-cent sega!"

No entertainment has so ably foiled the depression's deflation as high class music. For three years various symphonies played to capacity as have most voice recitals, pianists and violin virtuosos. Harried folk find in the magic of music a disembodied pensiveness—an escape from that malevolent triad, greed, lust and deceit. In a symphony audience today I noticed many drifting in who seemed to be a part of life's castaways but in no time at all troubled expressions melted into radiation. One sees, too, many not expected at symphonies. Such as Oscar of the Waldorf, Kent Cooper, Jules Bache and if my eyes did not deceive, that tarty tornado, Mae West.

Bob Davis was telling about the first auto in his town. It was driven by a gossipy lady living next door who got up at daybreak for her first grip at the wheel. Going out the yard drive she hit the milk wagon kerplunk, sending it flying. She was unable to stop and went on. While the milkman was gathering up his cans, she rounded the block and, still unable to stop, knocked him onto a neighboring porch, and also broke the mule's leg. While neighbors were fanning the milkman to consciousness, the lady got out and rushed up to explain she did not drive very well. "You might not drive very well," gasped the milkman as his lids fluttered, "but Madam, you are sure thorough."

A pie-eyed stayout, weaving and twisting along Gramercy Park the other night lurched with a hiccup into a group in front of The Players and went on. "Looks as though he had an affair with a wine brick," chirped Clair Maxwell.

In a long stored trunk I came upon the bull's eye lantern acquired from a correspondence school with which I went right out and began shadowing the Presbyterian minister. While it gave out only the glow of a sick lightning bug, it would heat up a barn. And did anything ever smell so awful as an old school slate?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Somewhere I read a story about a little bird. The bird's kin had been wild things, their lives spent in gay, free flight over mountain top and jungle and the restless, endless sea. But this little bird had spent its life in a cage, being born there; and always it had seen only the narrow limits and the commonplace happenings of the room in which it lived.

Yet twice every year a strange thing happened.

Outside, there would come a turning of the season. The sky would warm with spring; the bare limbs and the frozen clods would break into delicate green flame. Or, summer having passed suddenly the gold would crumble into ash, and with the night there would be an icy patter on the pane—and strange, wild cries among the trees—and a far roaring, as though in the darkness great wings passed.

When either of these occasions happened, the little bird would do the strange thing which I have mentioned. For four days it would sit huddled and twitching—its eyes closed, its wings fluttering—as though it, too, were set upon a journey. Yet never once had those wings known flight, or those eyes seen the glory of the sun or the wonder of the moon!

In spite of captivity, in spite of all the dullness of its lot—a dullness which must have drugged the tiny brain as it padded the body—the spirit of the bird remembered freedom and flight! And through the dullness it heard those faint, mysterious calls which set its blood kin on their long, free trail.

Often I think of that story, as I go about among men and women. Caged things, so pitifully many of them! Caged more terribly than any bird could ever be. For they are imprisoned not only in the shabby limits of poverty and ill health, but so often by the vicious bars of their own natures—by degrading habits and impulses they have never learned to control.

Captives, poor things, as surely as though they were chained in dungeons! And doomed, often, to spend their lives in the shame and darkness and misery of their self-made hells.

Yet something in them is not chained, is not broken. Something in them remembers nobler dreams. And almost you can see their spirit fluttering in answer to a call you cannot hear!

Never have I seen it fail. Not in one of them. Even the lowest of them—in jails or brothels or filthy dens. No matter how sodden the flesh, how numbed the brain, how bleared the eye—ALWAYS THE SOUL REMEMBERS.

As there never was a bird, though caged, which did not remember the free sun, the wheeling stars, so never was there a human soul, no matter how bound and degraded, which did not remember those bright goals toward which its course was set.

Love—courage—wisdom—honor—pride. These are the great goals of a man's long, blundering flight; and never can he fall so low that sometimes—if only to the challenge of your faith in him—he will not remember that flight.

Think of that as you go among men and women; particularly in these days when so many of them live caged, with broken wings. Do not judge them by their cages or their broken wings. Your spirit has not forgotten its journey. Neither have theirs. Be patient! Watch! Have faith!

THE SOUL REMEMBERS!

THE SOUL WILL FLY AGAIN!

The Speculative Orgy

The Stock Market Boom Threatens to Divert Funds Needed for Trade and Industry.

By JULIUS G. BERENS

Financial Editor, New York American.

JUST two months ago President Roosevelt, in his inaugural address, declared:

"There must be an end to speculation with other people's money."

It was a declaration of independence, a formal pledge of the new Chief Executive that no longer would the nation's savings and surplus funds be allowed to become entangled in the treacherous whirlpools of speculation.

BENEFITS of inflation, to date, are restricted to speculators. Granted there probably is substantial foundation for a rise in prices, does this also mean that no brakes are to be applied, that the old order is restored, that no restrictions are to govern the stock exchange, that manipulation and security-jobbing are to be given free reign?

Regulation of the stock exchange IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST has NOT been effected.

No PUBLIC restraints are in force to restrict unwarranted enticement of the public into the market.

THERE IS NO LEGAL RESTRAINT TO PREVENT THE COUNTRY'S FUNDS FROM AGAIN FINANCING ANOTHER WILD, RECKLESS, SPECULATIVE ORGY.

It would mean that business men and others would direct their efforts, not to employment-giving pursuits, but toward Wall street in hope of quick and bonanza profits.

But, certainly, something can and should be done to prevent abuse of the whole financial structure by allowing the stock exchange again to drain from the country the very funds needed to stimulate business and revive employment.

CURE FOR TANTRUMS

By Winifred Black

Barbara's been having tantrums. Terrible tantrums.

Sulks, pouts and door slammings, and throwing books across the room, and calling names, and crying for hours at a time.

She told me about it this very day.

"Yes," said Barbara, "I'm having tantrums these days. I don't like to have tantrums, they wear me out, but everybody else in the house was having them, so I thought I'd have a few, too, and see what would happen.

"My house was going to the dogs.

"The cook had the sulks if I dared ask a friend to stay to luncheon with me.

"Sister was determined to powder and rouge, like the 'rest of the girls,' and when we wouldn't let her, she went into hysterics and threw herself on the bed and kicked her heels and cried. Oh, it was awful.

"Poor Jim was afraid to come home from the office—something was always wrong.

"I tried to be patient and dignified, and reasonable and the more reasonable and patient I was, the more temperamental everyone else was, so I made up my mind to be temperamental, too.

"I started in with the cook. I told her the bacon was burned and the coffee was weak and the hot rolls were not hot at all.

"The cook was so dumbfounded, she couldn't speak. She just gasped.

"You ought to see the dinner that cook served that night, all my favorite dishes—I had an awful time, not being sweet to her about it.

"I called the whole family into the library together, and I said, 'I'm tired of tantrums—if anybody is going to have a tantrum in this house, I'm the one that will have it. From this hour I shall be a temperamental Tessie, and you might all just as well get used to it.'

"'Yes, mam,' said the cook; 'yes, mam,' whispered the maid.

"'Yes, darling,' said Cousin Lida.

"When I told Jim about it last night, he laughed 'till the tears ran down his cheeks.

"'But don't you get temperamental with me, young lady,' he said.

Strange woman Barbara—I suppose she was tired of the tantrums. I wonder how her way of getting them out of the house will work, don't you?
